Eric Bell: anatomy of a tragedy

"A mountain lion is shot in Big Sur and the letters pour in. A 15-year-old boy commits suicide in Juvenile Hall, and not one letter."—Dr. Edward Stackowiack, Carmel Highlands

By STEVE HELLMAN

SHERIFF'S DETECTIVE Terry Phau warned Monterey County Juvenile Hall authorities the night he delivered Eric Bell into their hands that the Carmel Valley boy had threatened suicide.

The 15-year-old was in custody on charges that he had burglarized his father's home May 4, taking a .357 magnum revolver, $15,000 in jewelry and a stereo from the sprawling, ranch-style house on Via Madelena in Mid-Valley.

The burglary had capped a long and bitter feud between the boy and his father, Nick Bell, a successful real estate developer and former highway patrolman.

The father had reported his home ransacked and burglarized, certain his oldest son was the culprit; the boy was missing at the time from a foster home in Santa Cruz. He had broken into his father's home several times before.

Eric, short and muscular, had a history of drug use, burglaries, arson, vandalism and other pointless teenage crimes.

He had been at odds with his parents since their divorce in 1970, becoming unmanageable in school, at home and in a string of foster homes. He was a constant runaway, sullen and hostile toward authority.

Eric was arrested on the burglary charge Sunday, May 11 — Mother's Day. He was picked up off the street in Pacific Grove where he used to live.

His mother, who lives in Washington state, was not notified. A devoutly religious woman, she probably was in church at the time.

Eric was taken to the sheriff's Monterey substation for a statement. He was there until late that night.

Detective Phau talked with Eric for several hours before taking him to Juvenile Hall in Salinas early Monday morning.

Phau recognized Eric as the 5-year-old who had been accused of setting fires in Pacific Grove 10 years earlier — fires Phau had investigated.

Phau would later recall that although it wasn't Eric's first ride to Juvenile Hall, the boy seemed most upset about being in custody; he must have sensed the burglary charge was one he could not run from.

Before leaving the substation for the ride to Salinas, Eric tried reaching his mother in Washington, but she refused the collect call, unaware of her son's desperate circumstance.

PHAU turned Eric over to Juvenile Hall about 2 a.m. Monday, with the warning the boy had threatened suicide and should be watched.

Juvenile Hall authorities would later maintain they watched Eric closely the rest of the night, and that he "slept like a baby."

Based on his previous stays there — with no indications of suicide — the hall counselors relaxed their watch the second night.

SOMETIME AFTER 9:30 p.m. Monday, May 12, Eric tied a torn sheet to the wire screen covering the window in his room, slipped a noose around his neck and leaned into it until he blacked out from lack of oxygen.

He was found dead at 10:50 p.m., his feet on the floor. County Coroner Harvey Hillburn ruled death by asphyxia due to strangulation, "a probable suicide." He said no evidence of drugs was found.

Eric left no note.

Eric's death was the second suicide at the hall since January 1979. It received only brief mention in local newspapers.

It prompted a report to the county Board of Supervisors from the Probation Department, with Juvenile Hall officials promising psychiatric counseling and closer attention for its wards.

Bell's father, however, is convinced Juvenile Hall was negligent and could have prevented his son's death. He said he intends to file a wrongful-death suit against the county.

Juvenile Hall officials contend Eric sorely wanted to kill himself — an intention supported, they said, by the way he leaned into the noose.

The officials, however, had put him in a room a long distance from their checking station.

Donald Farmer, county probation chief in charge of Juvenile Hall, acknowledged that Eric was placed in a room counselors were less apt to pass in the routine of answering room intercoms. He insisted, however, that Eric never gave an outward sign of suicidal intent.

TEACHERS AND SCHOOL counselors said that from the beginning they saw in Eric a hostile child who was so divorced from his family and school that he was "one of the lost ones."

By the time he left Carmel Middle School in 1979, according to one counselor, "he was so angry he was going to kill himself or someone else."

THE DEATH STILL begs the question of many people who knew Eric: Why did the 15-year-old son of a successful real estate developer and devoutly Christian woman kill himself?

'He was so angry he was going to kill himself or someone else.'

The clues to this teen-age tragedy are not uncommon. A broken marriage and divided home. Custody battles. A father who loved his son, but failed to show it

Party for grads

Dear Editor:

After Carmel High graduation, parents, teachers and friends try to have a great evening for the graduates and their guests.

This year the party was held at the Carmel Youth Center.

Gambling tables were manned by volunteers, students were given play money and could use their winnings at an auction of donated items held at the end of the evening.

We thank Carmel for putting up with the noise of a band and the comings and goings of young people on graduation night. Many thanks also to all the teachers, parents and merchants for the time, energy and money spent to help keep our graduates at a fun party and all together on their graduation night.

Public restrooms

Dear Editor:

During the City Council meeting June 2, several references were made concerning the need for some decent restrooms for public use.

It's good to know that the council recognizes the problem does exist—but it seems to be impossible for it to take any positive action to correct it.

The question surfaced again in connection with the probable purchase of the Piccadilly property and its subsequent utilization. Since this won't get resolved, in the foreseeable future, I'd like to offer an alternative solution.

What's the matter with using the City Hall property?

Either open up the City Hall facilities on a seven-day-a-week basis (there should be no difficulty in securing the office area and the council chambers, leaving open the entranceway access to the restrooms).

Or better yet, construct some first-class facilities in the 900-plus-square-foot area now being taken up by the totally useless driveway.

Surely if the city can put in restrooms for the dozen or so locals who used to occasionally play shuffleboard in the Forest Hill Park, it would certainly be appropriate to do as much for our hundreds of tourist visitors.

Admittedly, this would be only a partial solution—but at least it would be a start—which is a lot more than is being accomplished now.

Cholesterol

Dear Editor:

Those who read the National Academy of Science's recommendations the other day are undoubtedly troubled and confused, at best, over the recommendation on fat and cholesterol consumption.

For instance, when we look around the world at cultures where heart and blood vessel disease are rare, their diets are nearly always extremely low in fat and cholesterol (much lower than the experimental diets used in the above studies).

When people from these cultures move to our culture and adopt our way of life, they begin getting heart disease, as well as breast and colon cancer, at the same rate that we do.

While NAS is correct in saying the large studies have not shown that modest reductions in fat and cholesterol can prevent heart disease, they cannot conclude that further reductions are not beneficial. In fact, the evidence taken in sum is overwhelming that if you can significantly reduce your intake of fat and cholesterol, you will lower your blood cholesterol, and your risk of heart disease.

Too much money

By AL EISNER

WE KNOW A LOVELY LADY who often says: "You can't be too rich or too thin."

This may be true for human beings, but I think cities can be too rich.

Carmel is one example. Embarrassed by the torrent of dollars flowing in from our thriving tourist industry, the city fathers (and mothers) keep thinking up ways to get rid of the stuff.

They voted 4-1 Monday night to grant $3,500 to Friends of Grove, to help the Pacific Grove-based organization in its fight to stop Pacific Gas and Electric Company from enlarging its mooring facilities at Moss Landing to allow big tankers to unload.

The action could open up a can of worms. Other organizations will undoubtedly begin to besiege the city—seeking money to fight their good fight. (As if to prove the point, just after the council voted the funds Monday night, a person representing an entirely new organization marched to the podium and asked for a similar contribution.)

Now, don't get me wrong. I am very much in sympathy with the goals of Friends of Grove. This newspaper has taken a strong editorial position against the intrusion of large tankers in Monterey Bay.

I am, however, also very much in sympathy with the goals of the Sierra Club, Audubon Society, League of Women Voters, Native Plant Society, Wilderness Society, Cousteau Society, Friends of the Sea Otter (shall I go on?), but am skeptical of the wisdom of giving money to these groups out of the taxpayers' pockets.

BECAUSE OF THEIR hasty action, the council established a precedent that could prove dangerous.

Are the aims and purposes of the Sierra Club less worthy than Friends of Grove?

Is it more important to save the sea otter than to promote preservation of open space for public enjoyment?

Will the council have to weigh the relative merits of saving either the condor or an obscure sea animal some day?

Where does it all begin and end?

The Friends of Grove group has been involved in a lot of battles in Pacific Grove. They lobbied successfully to beat off high-rise development in Pacific Grove and to discourage proliferation of fast food outlets. Their activities in regard to the oil tankers is one part of their program.

Since the Carmel City Council adopted a resolution some months ago against the expansion of the Moss Landing mooring facility, it could be argued that the grant of funds was in harmony with city policy. I would hate to be the one that has to make the decision when representatives of other worthy organizations come before the city with their requests.

Perhaps the city should encourage this sort of activity by giving money to such organizations. If so, I think such a policy should be adopted after public hearings so that all of the implications are discussed.

If the four members of the council were obliged to pay the $3,500 out of their own pockets, I'll bet they would have second thoughts about it. As long as it is the "taxpayers'" money, though, I guess anything goes.

Eric's message

By LENNY LEVINE

Steve Hellman's story of the Eric Bell tragedy leaves us a message the boy did not when he ended his life at 15.

Eric's message was popularized in the 1960s, when people talked of "narrowing the generation gap to establish a more meaningful dialogue."

There were several forces in his short life, pulling away little pieces until there was no more Eric. Those forces—parents, school, friends, juvenile authorities, police—pretty much say the others were to blame for what happened to him.

No one of those forces is to blame. They all are.

We all are.

Eric's tragedy indicts us all, a "me first" society too caught up with its plastic veneer to nurture the fine grain underneath.

A piece of each of us departed with Eric.

His message was simple:

"Help me. I'm yours."

The Mayor's report:

I WOULD LIKE TO TAKE a few moments to discuss some of the actions taken at the June 2 City Council meeting.

I was the only dissenter on the vote to buy the Piccadilly property on Dolores Street. My reasons were expressed at the meeting and I believe they were valid.

The city owns about 45 acres in an area of one square mile. I believe that is an ample amount.

Secondly, by buying the property—at whatever the final figure would be—a basis is being established for neighboring property owners to raise their sights on the value of their property and, ultimately, would raise rents accordingly.

Thirdly, a public toilet tucked in the back of a lot bought for about $400,000 just doesn't make sense, (cents?). I believe that type of structure should be in an open area such as Devendorf Park where no businesses are right next to it. What is your belief on spending one-quarter of the city's reserves to acquire land for this use? 'Nuff said!

THE COUNCIL received the proposal for the suggested changes in the Planning Commission format.

It is not necessarily the final plan, but it is a start. The suggested reorganization would allow for more effective use of commissioner and staff time and would result in more rapid processing of applications.

A joint Planning Commission and council meeting has been set up for Thursday, June 12, at 4 p.m., to discuss the plan and other planning topics. I am certain it will ultimately be beneficial to all.

THE COUNCIL also voted to take its salary until 1982 and then put the item to the voters.

I have given definite instruction to staff that I wish no salary checks issued to me.

AS A MATTER of information to all "Owner-Builders," the Legislature has adopted Senate Bill 831 which requires additional information before a building permit is issued. It takes effect July 1. To those involved, a call to the Building Department might be very helpful and time-saving.

COMING UP at the first meeting in July, which, incidentally, will be our first meeting starting at 7:30 p.m., will be a deregulation plan for cable TV.

The City of Monterey has approved the plan and the county is preparing an ordinance to cover it. Basically, it would set the cable hookup charges on an even basis in the county.

I MUST ASK for the cooperation of parents of children who are enjoying the new playground at Forest Hill Park.

The park was built for old and young to enjoy and, hopefully, all will. I would appreciate your efforts in teaching your children to also consider the older people who live in the area and impress upon them that some older people sleep late or cannot get out and are confined to their homes. They spend their time reading, watching TV and often enjoy an afternoon nap. There really isn't any need for excessive screaming and yelling.

The park is for everybody's enjoyment. I appreciate your cooperation. Thank you!

IN CLOSING, I just learned today that one of our exceptional and talented residents has been awarded two Gold Medals for his outstanding contributions to Western Art.

The National Academy of Western Art in Oklahoma has presented the medals to none other than our own Donald Teague. Congratulations, Don!

Even after last week's meeting,

I'm still smiling!
Mayor Barney

P.S. The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Red Cross Chapter House at Eighth and Dolores on Thursday, June 19, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

May I encourage those eligible to donate their blood to save lives.

Luncheon is served; transportation and parking are available.

A letter from Gwen

From "The Other Side of the Grapevine Fence"

Some merry notes to lots of folks.

TO FRANK LLOYD:
I'm full of trepidation
At your vacillation
Over the salary situation.
Would it be an oversimplification
To say you shirked your obligation
So you could receive compensation?

TO HOWARD BRUNN:
Is your no smoking ban necessary
Or simply arbitrary?
It seems so secondary
And very questionable.

TO BARNEY LAIOLO:
You are to be congratulated
That you didn't want to be compensated
You most surely demonstrated
That you couldn't be manipulated.

TO BOB GRIGGS:
What you say to the press is astounding.
I also find it dumbfounding
On the issues you insist on compounding.
Perhaps you should stop expounding.

Father Farrell's Wisdom

Keep a vigilance

By THE REV. LARRY FARRELL

Lord John Acton, Baron, was educated at my old school Oscott in Warwickshire. He was a moral historian who is credited with being the first to point out the tendency in both democracy and socialism to deteriorate into tyranny when the populace cease to be vigilant.

One of his greatest phobias was the frequency with which men in power succumb to the "Almighty God Syndrome"—when they think their office, the star, the stripe, the title, the robe gives them infallibility. He conceded that the office may deserve respect and honor but he warned that it does not automatically confer sanctity and glory on the holder. Be the job the president of the United States, the governor, the mayor, the parish priest, the Rotary president or the dog catcher.

O Lord, keep our office holders honest and humble.
Keep their minds and hearts open to the voice of conscience and the needs of their constituents. May they learn that honor is earned by integrity, empathy and experience.

James Whitcomb Riley was a 19th century poet from the Indiana Cornbelt. Critics say his verse was corny but corn is a healthy food and here is some of his advice:
"To attain the highest good of time man and womanhood, simply do your honest best. God with you will do the rest."

Finally Deena Cotton Smith says: "Congress is having those Salt II debates even as Halloween comes upon us. What they're debating is, is it tricky or is it treaty?"

Council, planners meet tonight

The time of the previously announced meeting of the Carmel City Council and the Planning Commission has been changed from 4 to 7 p.m. today.

The change was made so officials could attend a ribbon-cutting ceremony at the new Monterey Savings Bank in Carmel.

Included on the agenda will be consideration of the General Plan, transient occupancy, large houses constructed on standard 40-by-100-foot lots and possible reorganization of the Planning Commission.

Legal action sought

David store on Ocean Ave. to close; owner blames soaring city rent

ANOTHER RETAILER HAS fallen victim to soaring rents in Carmel.

David Hughes, owner of the David store on the northeast corner of Ocean and San Carlos, was to have cleared out all merchandise from his store by tomorrow (Friday.)

A Monterey County sheriff's deputy served Hughes last Friday with an eviction notice from Superior Court. Legal action was sought by the landlord, Paul Laub, who sued for payment of back rent.

Hughes, who ran his gift and accessories shop at the location for six years, said, "Sales have not kept pace with inflation for the past couple of years, and it added up to more of a load than we could carry."

Hughes, a past president of the Carmel Business Association, said Laub "exercised his rights when a tenant becomes delinquent." He added that his rent had risen "from $7,500 a month to more than $11,000 a month, plus taxes and insurance."

He said his business suffered from "increasing costs of doing business and decreased foot traffic in downtown Carmel."

LAUB told the Pine Cone Hughes had fallen behind in his rent, and that he had been "working with him for months to try to solve the problem."

Hughes lost his lease by default for non-payment of the rent, and could not, therefore, seek a buyer for his business.
Nor could he sell his lease.

According to Laub, the store has 11,000 square feet of retail space, including the mezzanine and lower level. Laub said he was looking for a new tenant.

Lloyd's shoe store on the mezzanine level would remain, he said.

Laub told the Pine Cone: "David's was one of my favorite stores in Carmel. I'll miss it. I enjoyed working with a man of his stature."

He said he hoped "one of Carmel's finer local stores would like the location."

Hughes, who has extensive merchandising experience with I.
Magnin, Nieman-Marcus and Best and Co., ran the Cinderella apparel shops in Carmel before he leased the Ocean Avenue location from Laub.

The corner was formerly occupied by Crocker Bank. It was originally the site of the Old Bank of Carmel.

Party to honor Mrs. Chapman is Sunday at Sunset Center

By BOB BATES

CITY OFFICIALS will join friends of Mrs. Dorothy Chapman in honoring the long-time Carmel resident and Cultural Commission member at a party at Sunset Center, Sunday, June 15, at 3 p.m.

Mrs. Chapman retired June 10 after serving 12 years—four consecutive three-year-terms as a commissioner.

Mrs. Chapman donated a room to Sunset Center as an incentive to others to support the center.

During an interview in her prize-winning home on San Antonio Street last week, Mrs. Chapman shared with the Pine Cone some of her almost 50 years in Carmel.

A patron of the arts, Mrs. Chapman often purchased paintings and other works from Carmel artists.

"I didn't do it to help them," she said. "Most of them were well on their way."

The first piece of art, a painting, by a Carmel artist Mrs.
Chapman was to purchase was bought on a trip to Texas.

"The artist's name was Whitman, or something like that," she said. "Anyway, I liked his work so I bought it."

Mrs. Chapman remembers Carmel when a boardwalk

(Mrs. Chapman was re-appointed to a fifth three-year term on the cultural commission by Mayor Barney Laiolo June 9.)

reached from Monte Verde Street to the ocean.

"You could look down between the cracks and see the grass growing and the garter snakes," she laughed.

"I never did anything I didn't want to do," Mrs. Chapman said with a twinkle in her clear blue eyes.

OVER THE YEARS, Mrs. Chapman has been active in politics as an alternate to the Republican Central Committee and has been a supporter of the Carmel Youth Center.

She donated trees to Mission Trail and Forest Hill parks and replaced a plum tree that was destroyed during a storm some years ago at Sunset Center.

Before the inception of the Little Theater in the Forest (later to become Forest Theater), Carmel actor Herbert Herron would appear at City Council meetings during the 1930s to recite Shakespeare during intermissions in council proceedings.

The council and the audience would applaud and then go back to city business, Mrs. Chapman said.

"The painter, Varda, whose works are now eagerly sought by collectors, used to throw a painting together and take it to an exhibit while it was still wet, Mrs. Chapman said.

A portrait of Mrs. Chapman in the 1930s by Julie Stohr shows a determined, attractive young woman staring pensively at the viewer.

"I had just been divorced, with two small children," Mrs.
Chapman said. "I told her to make me look haughty."

"I never really understood artists," Mrs. Chapman said. "I suppose that is why I got such a kick out of them."

Among her acquaintances were playwright John Patrick and

Daisey Bostick.

Patrick would later write Teahouse of the August Moon and other American classics.

The Carmel of today does not intimidate Mrs. Chapman.
"I think we should be better to the tourists," she said.

"There were tourists in the early years, too," she said.
"They usually came to stay awhile then."

Travel to Carmel in the 1930s meant negotiating the old San Juan grade, which was the main highway between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Fog along the grade often limited travel.

Although she retired from the Cultural Commission June 10, Mrs. Chapman still plans to be involved in community affairs.

"I am a little fearful of making a speech" (during the party in her honor), Mrs. Chapman said.

"I am afraid I might burst into tears."

Time-sharing rentals banned

By BOB BATES

CARMEL CITY COUNCIL clamped the lid on time-sharing rentals here June 9 when it unanimously passed an urgency ordinance placing a moratorium on the practice.

The ordinance, which became effective immediately, will remain in effect for four months, unless additional legislation concerning the jet-age industry is enacted in the interim.

The urgency ordinance was brought into play due to concern on the part of some council members that real estate speculators would take advantage of the knowledge that an ordinance was in the works to control or limit the purchase of property for development of time-sharing programs.

An ordinance drawn up by City Attorney George Brehmer currently under consideration by city officials would impose both transient occupancy and hostelry taxes on time-sharing projects.

Time-sharing allows several investors to buy the use of a condominium, apartment or part or all of a house, usually for a week to a month each year. A time-sharing participant can trade time slots with other time-sharing participants almost anywhere in the world.

Until recently, there were no legal constraints on the mushrooming industry in California.

The practice originated in Hawaii in the past decade.

The inspiration for this ordinance came from Dennis Crabb, city attorney of South Lake Tahoe. Crabb, a former city attorney for Monterey, borrowed from a Nevada ordinance in drafting his own, Brehmer said.

Brehmer's proposed time-sharing ordinance, which deals with the conversion of apartments into condominiums as well as time-sharing projects, will be reviewed by both the City Planning Commission and the City Council before being submitted for adoption.

Rumors of large-scale purchases by time-sharing speculators in Carmel have been circulating in the city for some time, according to Doug Peterson, city administrator.

City now wants $31,000 for 'in-lieu' parking

By BOB BATES

CARMEL PLANNING Commissioner Sandy Swain was seen chuckling up the sleeve of her jogging suit outside City Council chambers Monday, June 9, after the council passed a resolution calling for an ordinance that would raise "in-lieu" parking fees from $13,750 to $31,000 a space.

She has been highly critical of in-lieu parking, calling for a re-evaluation of the practice by the City Council.

"In-lieu" parking allows a developer to pay the city for not providing required parking spaces. The money is kept in a city fund to be used for building parking of the city's choice.

"I never dreamed I would be so potent," Ms. Swain said after the council directed City Administrator Doug Peterson to come back to the council with a proposed ordinance to more than double the fee charged by the city for in-lieu parking.

Councilman Mike Brown, seconded by Councilman Frank Lloyd, proposed the $31,000 figure, based on estimates of what it would cost the city to provide a parking space in the commercial district.

MAYOR BARNEY LAIOLO said a 500-space garage might be in sight for Carmel as the result of talks with "interested parties."

Laiolo would not elaborate, except to say the parking facility would not be at Sunset Center's North Field, a frequently mentioned location for a city-owned parking deck.

Laiolo voted against the $31,000 in-lieu parking fee.

"I think the Planning Commission should take another look at this and come up with the figures," he said.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold abstained from voting. An abstention is counted as a yes vote by council procedure.

Councilman Howard Brunn sided with Lloyd and Brown in passing the resolution.

Environmental group claims victory over oil tankers with gift from city

By BOB BATES

ARMED WITH a $3,500 contribution from the City of Carmel, Anne Bartee, president of the executive committee of Friends of Grove, a Monterey Peninsula environmental group, has declared a victory in the organization's fight to keep large tankers out of Monterey Bay.

Carmel City Council voted four to one during the Monday, June 9 council meeting to make the contribution to FOG, following a hectic week that saw Mrs. Bartee locking horns with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. over a permit application to build a mooring for large tankers at the utility's Moss Landing power plant.

On June 4, Mrs. Bartee, City Councilman Howard Brunn and FOG representatives met with Gray Davis, an aide to Gov. Brown, seeking a letter to request that the Army Corps of Engineers deny the issuance of the PG&E permit.

"Davis made a commitment to me and he kept it," Mrs. Bartee said.

A committee appointed by Brown will study the issue.

Although no letter has been received, the Brown administration did request a delay in approving the permit, which asks that 90,000 dead-weight-ton tankers be allowed to dock at Moss Landing.

Dead-weight-tonnage is the weight of the vessel plus cargo.

OF PRIMARY concern to FOG is the possibility of a large oil spill in the bay.

"It is going to take public support now to keep the supertankers out of Monterey Bay permanently," Mrs. Bartee said.

"What we have accomplished is to establish a historical precedent that will affect the entire California Coast."

The key figure in the scenario, Mrs. Bartee said, is the Engineers' San Francisco district engineer, Col. John Adsit.

"Col. Adsit is the real hero of the entire drama," Mrs. Bartee said.

"He is an honorable man who makes U.S. Rep. Leon Panetta look like a Boy Scout."

Panetta has been slow in responding to the tanker issue, she said.

Adsit met with Mrs. Bartee, Councilman Brunn and Gail Bower, also of the FOG executive committee, Tuesday, June 10, to hear further arguments on the tanker issue.

Concerning the Carmel City Council contribution to her organization, Mrs. Bartee was effusive.

"The council's action gives us the impetus to continue, and hopefully to ban supertankers from Monterey Bay permanently," she said.

"We are delighted. I feel this is the signal that we have won the entire campaign."

Conditions established by the city for using its $3,500 contribution include the right of the city to audit the funds at any time to determine that it is being spent to continue FOG's efforts to keep large tankers out of Monterey Bay.

If at any time the city determines the money is not being used for that purpose, any remaining money will be refunded and FOG executives held responsible for that portion spent on other projects, according to an agreement drawn up by City Attorney George Brehmer.

The money will be placed in a special bank account and two signatures of FOG executive committee members (Mrs. Bartee and Gail Bowers) required to withdraw it.

MAYOR BARNEY LAIOLO, the only councilman to vote against contributing city money to FOG, expressed concern that other groups would request money from the council to finance their causes.

Moments after FOG was granted the $3,500 contribution, Paul A. Enz of Pacific Grove asked the council for $2,500 to help finance a group called Grass Roots Energy Treaty (GREAT).

Enz said he was responsible for obtaining 17,000 signatures for FOG on a petition calling for the banning of supertankers in Monterey Bay.

The council declined to act on his request.

Petition denied

"Supertankers won't be coming to Monterey Bay," Carmel City Councilman Howard Brunn said yesterday.

An application by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to expand its Moss Landing oil tanker mooring was denied the day before by Col. John Adsit, Army Corps of Engineers San Francisco district engineer. Adsit had met earlier with Brunn and members of Friends of Grove, a Pacific Grove environmental group.

Gail Bower, chairman of FOG's executive committee, said, "PG&E will now have to begin its application process all over again. That means the Coastal Commission and other state and federal agencies as well. It will be a time-consuming process."

Floor repair work may start at Harrison Library

By BOB BATES

STRUCTURAL REINFORCEMENT of the sagging reference room floor of the Harrison Memorial Library may get under way this month, after a report by a structural engineer that the floor is inadequate to support tons of books and other materials, directly above the children's reading room.

Jon Raggett of Carmel told the City Council at its June 9 meeting that his analysis of the reference room, which was added to the original building in 1940, showed additional support is needed for safety.

"The fact that the floor bounces up and down is not in itself a safety consideration," Raggett said.

"What is apparent is that the space is overused."

Stacks of books and filing cabinets have accumulated in the reference room over the years, so that by present standards, the floor isn't safe, Raggett added.

The library was "earthquake-proofed" in 1976.

"I am not suggesting that the whole thing is going to come crashing down due to an overload of books," he said.

The floor might collapse when many people are in the library, he indicated.

"I think the work should be done soon," he said.

Modifications would include reinforcement of the first floor, which houses the children's reading room, with beams, columns and footing.

Cost would be about $5,000, Raggett said.

City Administrator Doug Peterson asked for and was granted council authorization to meet with the library board to discuss funding the project.

Peterson suggested the city share equally the cost of alterations with the library board.

Councilman Frank Lloyd said walking on the floor of the reference room was tantamount to experiencing a minor earthquake. "This appears to be a matter of urgency to me," Lloyd said.

Former Carmel Mayor Bernard Anderson asked the council for library expansion.

"I have been an advocate of additional library space for years," Anderson said. "This is just one more indication of the need to expand."

The Council also authorized Peterson to spend the city's contributions to the project.

Master Plan thrown out

CV Ranch called 'dead'; EIR ordered

By STEVE HELLMAN

THE CARMEL VALLEY RANCH is "dead in the water" and other major developments in the Valley are blocked from advancing in the wake of last week's court judgment on the new Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Superior Court Judge Richard Silver ruled that the Master Plan was improperly approved last January by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors without a proper assessment of its growth-control policies and 2,500-unit housing quota.

The supervisors were ordered to rescind their approval of the Master Plan and order an Environmental Impact Report for it.

The ruling came on a suit filed by the City of Carmel and Virginia Merz of Carmel.

An interim ordinance prohibiting approval of any new projects in the Valley will be reinstated by the supervisors June 24. They will also receive an initial study from planning staff on the scope of the EIR and the issues it must address.

The building moratorium was in effect for 11 months while the Master Plan went through final revisions and approval. It will be reinstated with the same provisions, allowing only preliminary environmental determinations for proposed projects (basically, the decision whether a project requires an EIR).

THE ONLY specific exemptions under the moratorium are for the Carmel Valley Ranch and the Rancho Canada Lodge projects.

The planned 175-room Rancho Canada Lodge, however, is the subject of another suit filed by the City of Carmel, which seeks to overturn the use permit approved for it last year.

And despite its exemption, Carmel Valley Ranch is subject to state Office of Planning and Research conditions that no more development can be approved in Carmel Valley until the Master Plan is implemented.

Meanwhile, all proposed projects, including the 201-lot La Cuesta subdivision, 65-lot Quail Meadows subdivision and development of the Odello family's land at the mouth of the Valley are halted by the building moratorium.

The moratorium will remain in effect while the county prepares an EIR for the Master Plan, submits it for state agency review and approves it through public hearings — a process expected to take several months.

The supervisors will also have to re-approve the Master Plan through public hearings, and consider requests for changes in it based on findings in the EIR.

It could be next year before the Master Plan is implemented, and then it could be significantly different.

Critics of Carmel's suit contend the EIR will delay implementation of the Master Plan, opening it up to fresh attacks from developers and changes that will allow more development.

Proponents of the EIR say it will lead to tighter restrictions on development, and that in the interim there is the moratorium on development.

"The Carmel Valley Ranch is dead in the water," said Alexander Henson, attorney for Carmel in its suit.

Henson acknowledged that the Carmel Valley Ranch Specific Plan is exempted from the building moratorium, but he said the Specific Plan is not effective without the Master Plan.

"The Specific Plan was based on the Master Plan," he said. "Since there is no approved Master Plan, the development is in limbo. Its Specific Plan is just floating out there with its underpinnings pulled away."

He added that the state Office of Planning and Research granted a one-year extension to the county to correct its General Plan, and a condition of the extension is that new developments not proceed in Carmel Valley until the Master Plan is approved.

What if the Ranch developers came in anyway for approval of more units, since nowhere does Carmel's suit or the judge's ruling maintain a specific injunction against the Ranch?

"Just let them (the developers) try," Henson said. "There's no Master Plan. We're back to the interim ordinance. The supervisors would be very ill advised when nothing else can be approved to approve anything for the Ranch. I'm sure there would be litigation."

Henson said that Silver's ruling, while it didn't single out the Ranch, places it in the same status as all other projects. "Any further increments of development on the Ranch will have to be addressed in the EIR for their cumulative adverse impacts on the Valley," said Henson, who worked seven years for the state attorney general's environmental unit.

The "focused" EIR ordered by Judge Silver must address the Ranch project's impacts on traffic, water supply and sewage disposal, Henson maintained.

might appeal Silver's ruling, Henson said simply, "They can't. They were not a party to the lawsuit."

WILL THE developers pressure the county to appeal the decision?

Henson replied: "I've heard it through the grapevine that they don't intend to. Silver's ruling was too solid, too strong."

Silver ruled June 5, one day before the 20-year Master Plan was to be implemented, that the supervisors abused their discretion, circumvented state law and ignored the advice of their planning staff in approving the Master Plan Jan. 15 without an EIR.

He declared in a 12-page ruling that:

✓ The supervisors failed to heed an initial study by the county Planning Department which recommended that a "focused" EIR be prepared for the Master Plan.

✓ The supervisors had no factual basis to adopt a negative declaration in lieu of an EIR, nor evidence to conclude there were no potential significant cumulative environmental effects from the Master Plan.

✓ The supervisors failed to comply with the California Environmental Quality Act by adopting a negative declaration for the Master Plan instead of ordering an EIR.

✓ The supervisors made changes in the Master Plan before adopting it that allowed for more development, things which must be specifically addressed in the EIR.

Those changes allowed for residential development on the Odello family's agricultural land south of the Carmel River and east of Highway 1, designated the Rancho Canada Lodge an appropriate land use and opened other areas to hotel development, opened agricultural lands to low-density development and removed a restriction against development near biologically-sensitive areas.

✓ The supervisors had no defense against the suit in their argument that the new Master Plan allows for less growth and therefore less adverse environmental impact than the old plan.

✓ The supervisors had no defense in maintaining that EIRs have been prepared for individual projects throughout the Valley.

✓ The Master Plan is a positive step toward planning the future of Carmel Valley, but the overall beneficial effect is not sufficient to negate the requirement for an EIR.

Supervisors met in special session the day after Silver's ruling, and directed planning staff to prepare an initial study for the EIR.

There was some disagreement between Henson and the supervisors over the way in which the EIR will be prepared, what it must address and whether it will be subject to the court's review.

Henson also disagreed with Supervisor Sam Farr on the merits of the EIR, and whether the delay in implementing the Master Plan will open it up to attacks and ultimately lead to its being weakened.

HENSON SAID that instead of focusing the EIR on the 2,500 housing units to be allowed under the Master Plan, the EIR should focus on standards for traffic, air quality, water quality and noise.

Since an EIR must address a "project," the project definition for the Master Plan should not be the arbitrary 2,500 units, but established standards for environmental pollution, Henson maintained.

The standards, Henson contended, can act as stopgaps. Before traffic on Carmel Valley Road reaches a certain unacceptable level, development is halted; the same would go for noise or air pollution.

"You work backwards from the standards to establish a building quota for the next 20 years that is based in fact and not on arbitrary compromise," Henson said.

Henson told the supervisors they have the discretion according to law to decide what is in the Master Plan and the general direction of the EIR.

"But the process of the EIR is dictated by law," he said. He indicated the county must address the EIR to opposing views, for example, his advice that standards for pollution be used as stopgaps.

He insisted that the EIR will have to be submitted to Judge Silver for his review, and that Carmel could challenge the adequacy of the EIR at that time.

Board Chairman Michal Moore disputed Henson's stand.

He said, "The extent of the EIR and the way in which it will be approached is the decision of this board and not the City of Carmel."

Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos said he found nothing in Silver's ruling saying the EIR has to be submitted to the court.

Judge Silver told the Outlook and Pine Cone he has no intention of reviewing the EIR.

"It's not necessary; as long as they do one (an EIR), it won't have to come back to me," he said. "The only issue before me was whether an EIR should be prepared."

Henson maintained afterward that he would ask the court to review the EIR. "The EIR is going to have to be something that I can live with," he said.

SUPERVISOR FARR told Henson after the special session that the EIR represented a "dangerous gamble."

He said, "We made big strides with the Master Plan. It is workable, and now it'll be open to all kinds of factors, the housing shortage, a worsening economy, a growing anti-environmentalist movement."

"Times are getting tougher," Farr said, "and a year from now we may not be able to get as good a Master Plan approved."

Farr added that two seats on the board are up for election in November, his in the Fifth District and one in the First District. If pro-growth candidates, who are running in both races, are elected, it could alter the outlook considerably for adopting a new Master Plan, he said.

Text of judge's decision on CV Master Plan

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE
STATE OF CALIFORNIA
FOR THE COUNTY OF MONTEREY

CITY OF CARMEL BY-THA-SEA, a municipal corporation, and
VIRGINIA MERZ,
Petitioners,

vs.

MONTEREY COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS,
Respondent

THIS MATTER came on for hearing before the Court, sitting without a jury, on May 21, 1980.

Petitioners were present through their attorneys, George W. Brehmer, Alexander T. Henson and Richard H. Rosenthal; respondent was present through its attorney, Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos. The court then received into evidence the administrative record and other related documents and materials which were available to the board during the relevant time period; the court heard oral argument, and thereafter, took the matter under submission.

Petitioners seek a writ of mandate directing respondent Board of Supervisors to set aside their decision approving the Carmel Valley Master Plan based upon a negative declaration and to require respondent to prepare an Environmental Impact Report prior to the adoption of the Carmel Valley Master Plan. Petitioners contend that the board's action was not supported by substantial evidence and further, that substantial and significant revisions were made on the Carmel Valley Master Plan after the adoption of the negative declaration, thereby requiring a new determination as to whether an EIR or negative declaration was appropriate. Respondent board contends that in fact there was substantial evidence to support their decision; that they did substantially comply with the requirements of CEQA; and that it was not feasible to prepare an EIR at the time of the adoption of the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

In addition to the writ of mandate as indicated above, petitioners seek to enjoin respondents from implementing certain ordinances which were adopted in response to the approval of the Carmel Valley Master Plan and which lifted the "moratorium ordinances" adopted pursuant to a settlement reached between these parties in a separate lawsuit. The "moratorium" was to continue with the adoption of the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

On Nov. 23, 1976, respondent board appointed a citizens' committee to make recommendations on revisions to the Carmel Valley Master Plan. From that period until June 1979, the study committee surveyed available data on the Carmel Valley area and completed a revised Carmel Valley Master Plan. The revised plan was presented to respondent board on July 3, 1979. No steps had been taken to incorporate an EIR into the revision process.

At the same time, a staff-prepared initial study was presented as required by CEQA. The initial study, based on a thorough analysis of the revised Carmel Valley Master Plan and with knowledge of all materials and references therein, concluded that the proposed revised plan had potential adverse environmental effects and recommended preparation of a focused EIR.

Contrary to this recommendation, the respondent board requested that a negative declaration be prepared and set the matter for hearing on July 24, 1979. At the same time they issued Resolution No. 79-320 which resolved that the respondent would not approve specific plans within the Carmel Valley Master Plan area until that plan was revised and adopted.

The negative declaration was prepared by the planning staff and filed on July 5, 1979. At the hearing on July 24, 1979, respondent board adopted the findings and negative declaration. From Aug. 6, 1979, through Oct. 24, 1979, public hearings were held before the Planning Commission concerning the revised Carmel Valley Master Plan. From Nov. 27, 1979, through Jan. 15, 1980, respondent board considered the new Carmel Valley Plan during four public hearings and eventually adopted the plan on Jan. 15, 1980. The plan as adopted by the board contains certain significant changes that were not a part of the original revised plan. These changes, as adopted by respondent board, caused several people who earlier had supported a negative declaration to now request that a focused EIR be prepared. Notable amongst this group was the League of Women Voters. The respondent board chose not to refer the matter back for further study by staff, made no additional findings, and adopted the revised plan based upon the negative declaration ordered on July 3, 1979.

As a result of this action by respondent board, this lawsuit was filed.

THE ADOPTION or amendment of a general plan is a legislative function and subject to judicial review by traditional mandamus. Mountain Defense League v. Board of Supervisors, San Diego County (1977) 65 CA 3d 723. Court review is limited to the question of abuse of discretion which is defined as either conduct of the board contrary to law or a decision not supported by substantial evidence. Public Resources Code Section 21168.5. "Substantial evidence" does not mean "any" evidence, but rather evidence which is reasonable, credible, and of a solid value. Bank of America v. State Water Resources Control Board (1974) 42 CA 3d 198. In making their determination, the board and the court must follow legislative policy in interpreting facts and making environmental decisions. Many of these policies are incorporated in the Monterey County Guidelines adopted in May 1978, and patterned after the State of California Guidelines. These guidelines provide that major consideration must be given to preventing environmental damage (Guidelines, Section 15010(b), and developing and maintaining a high quality environment now and in the future. (Guidelines Section 15011(a)). In this connection the EIR takes on special significance. From a legislative and judicial perspective it has been called the "heart" of CEQA. (Guideline 15011.5(a)); County of Inyo v. Yorty 32 CA 3d 795.

Similarly, it has been stated that the EIR process is not only designed to assess environmental impacts but to insure to an "apprehensive citizenry" that in fact government has analyzed and considered ecological implications. Guideline 15011.5(d) through (e); No Oil Inc. v. City of Los Angeles 13 Cal. 3d 68; People ex rel Department of Public Works v. Bosio 47 CA 3d 495; People v. County of Kern 39 CA 3d 830. To accomplish this legislative goal, agencies and the court are directed to interpret CEQA "to afford the fullest possible protection to the environment." Guideline 15011.5 (f); Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors 8 Cal. 3d 247. The Supreme Court has clearly stated, "In view of the clearly expressed legislative intent to preserve and enhance the quality of the environment . . . the courts will not countenance abuse of the 'significant effect' qualification as a subterfuge to excuse the making of impact reports otherwise required by the act." Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors, supra.

In view of the above policies and other applicable principles as hereinafter indicated, it does appear that respondent abused its discretion in adopting a negative declaration instead of requiring the recommended Environmental Impact Report. It is clear that the adoption of an amendment to a county's general plan is a "project" requiring either an Environmental Impact Report or a negative declaration. City of Santa Ana v. City of Garden Grove, 100 CA 3d 521 (1980); guideline section 15037(a) (1). The decision must be supported by findings, and those findings must be supported by substantial evidence contained in the administrative record. The determination as to whether to prepare an EIR or negative declaration depends upon whether the project may have a significant effect on the environment. Public Resource Code Section 21151. A negative declaration is authorized only when it can be found that the project would have no significant effect on the environment. Public Resource Code Section 21080(c). In addition to potential environmental effects, respondent was also required to consider public opinion.

"There may be a difference of opinion on whether a particular effect should be considered adverse or beneficial, but where there is, or anticipated to be, a substantial body of opinion that considers or will consider the effect to be adverse, the county shall prepare an EIR to explore the environmental effects involved." Guideline section 15081(a); guideline section 15084(c). It is important to emphasize that the question is not whether a project will or will not have a significant effect on the environment, but rather whether " . . . it can be fairly argued on the basis of substantial evidence that the project may have a significant environmental impact."

No Oil Inc. v. City of Los Angeles, supra; guideline section 704(b). The decision-making process begins with the "Initial Study" conducted by the planning staff. The initial study is given particular importance in determining whether an EIR is required for a particular project.

The very purpose of the initial study is to identify environmental impacts and to provide an evidentiary basis for the board's action. Guideline section 15080(b) 1-5. In fact, the guidelines provide that "the initial study shall be used to provide a written determination whether a negative declaration or an EIR shall be prepared for a project." Guideline section 15080(d) (1). Guideline section 15083(a). The finding of "significant effect on environment" is mandatory if the "project has possible environmental effects which are individually limited but cumulatively considerable."

Guideline section 15082(c). From the above it is clear that the initial study should provide the core factual basis for the board's decision. In this case, the initial study clearly concluded that there were potential adverse impacts associated with the revised Carmel Valley Master Plan, of a cumulative nature, and recommended a focused EIR. (Administrative Record, Page 46.) There is not sufficient evidence in the record to overcome the factual underpinning and conclusion of the initial study and therefore, to allow the board to conclude that there is no potential of significant cumulative environmental effects.

The findings of the board rely on the initial study conclusion that the "entire plan and policies therein greatly reduce the impact that would occur if all the development foreseen in the present plan (Carmel Valley Master Plan, 1966) were implemented." (Administrative Record, Page 55). Overall "benefit" is not the test. "If any aspects of the project, either individually or cumulatively, may cause a significant effect on the environment, regardless of whether the overall effect on the project is adverse or beneficial, then an EIR must be prepared." Guideline Section 15080(a).

In this context, it is important to emphasize the significance of a general plan. "In 1971 the Legislature enacted Assembly Bill No. 1301 which transformed the general plan from just an 'interesting study' to the basic land use charter governing the direction of future land use in the local jurisdiction . . . As a result, general plans now embody fundamental land use decisions that guide the future growth and development of cities and counties." City of Santa Ana v. City of Garden Grove, supra, at Page 532.

The fact that the revised Master Plan may reduce impact in comparison with the old Master Plan is without significance in determining whether an EIR is required.

THE 1966 PLAN was implemented at a time when environmental concerns were not as clearly mandated. In order to rely on the previous general plan as a "substitute EIR" there would have to be a finding that there was an appropriate Environmental Impact Report, or its equivalent, accomplished at that time; that it was still viable considering the policies upon which those environmental decisions were made; and, that there were no subsequent developments in the interim years which could affect those environmental decisions. No such findings were made nor is there any evidence in the record to support such a finding. The fact that the old Master Plan could not be used as a substitute EIR was acknowledged by members of the board and their attorney (respondent's exhibit 2, transcript of board hearing, Page 33).

Judge's decision

Also see Building Code Action v. Energy Resources Conservation and Development Committee, 102 CA 3d 577 (1980).

Respondents further argue that other EIRs done on specific projects in the alleged areas of concentrated development provide substantial compliance with the EIR requirement. No such finding was made nor is there substantial evidence to support this decision. These other EIRs do not provide a coherent document prepared under the policies of the revised Carmel Valley Master Plan and did not assess environmental concerns from a cumulative position. They were prepared under the old Master Plan and different policies. Although county counsel strongly argues this point in his brief, he did acknowledge to the board at the time of the hearing that the existence of these other EIRs were not sufficient. Assistant County Counsel Ramos stated in response to a question asking whether those could be incorporated into this finding:

"No it could not. A finding is a reason why you're doing what you're doing. The existence of certain EIRs would not be support for what you're doing unless first of all those EIRs are before you. In the past an EIR for one project has been accepted as an EIR for another project where the EIR was done for a project on the same land or part of the same land. You have to, in effect, require an EIR and certify that all the EIRs in the list are going to serve as your EIR. They are not an incoherent document. The question is whether you could use them as a group to evaluate the Carmel Valley Master Plan. I think that just would be too difficult to take one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight EIRs and use them as a group to evaluate the Master Plan."

Those EIRs address themselves to projects built under an old Master Plan, and these EIRs do not address themselves to the revision of the Master Plan." (Respondent's exhibit 2, Page 33.)

THE BOARD was specifically advised as to the difficulty in relying on those EIRs and the procedure by which they would have to act if they so desired. They chose not to follow that procedure, and there is no finding nor substantial evidence to now support this procedure as a substitute for an EIR.

In Finding 2 (c), (Administrative Record, Page 55) the board again found that the cumulative effects of the revised plan were not considerable because the revised plan supplants rather than adds to the existing plan. For that reason they conclude that there is no significant effect from cumulative impact. The fact that this revised plan supplants or reduces growth from previous plans, for the reasons as stated above, are not sufficient to support a finding that no significant effect from cumulative impact will be present.

Again, such a finding implies that the prior plan was appropriate and that all building and development as incorporated within that plan was fully analyzed from an environmental concern and from which a conclusion could be drawn that there would be no adverse environmental impacts. It is only such an analysis that would allow one to conclude that less development or growth as indicated in the revised plan could have no cumulative impacts. It does appear correct to conclude that the revised plan is a positive effort by many people to guide future growth and development of the Valley in a beneficial way. But, as indicated above, an overall beneficial effect is not sufficient to negate the requirement of an EIR or justify a negative declaration if there remains potential for adverse environmental effects.

Respondents also argue that the Revised Carmel Valley Master Plan in its factual studies provide substantial compliance with the EIR requirement. They first state that the opinion of Dr. Peters is sufficient. That is not the case unless his opinion is supported by substantial evidence. Further, Dr. Peters acknowledged at the hearing on July 24, 1979, that the only thing not contained in any of the documents was the cumulative effect of the specific proposals for residential expansion. Thus, there is no substantial evidence to support a finding even if it were made, that the cumulative effect was already known or had been addressed in other EIRs. This is not to say that the work of Dr. Peters and the other citizens was not significant or in any way to degrade the work that they had accomplished. Rather, it is simply an acknowledgment that under the law there is evidence of potential adverse cumulative effects which require a focused EIR and which were not specifically addressed or considered in the Revised Plan.

Considering the weight and importance of a general plan, these considerations should be addressed before it is "etched in stone." The fact that there is room for amendment at some point in the future does not obviate the necessity of an EIR at this time. Otherwise, any project or plan could proceed without an EIR on the simple assumption that it could be amended. Also the fact that there may be individualized EIRs with respect to specific projects within the area of development accomplished in the future is not sufficient to overcome the necessity of an EIR prior to approval of the project. By their very nature those EIRs would be individual and would not address themselves to the cumulative effects of all projects area wide. In Bozung v. Local Agency Formation Committee of Ventura City, (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 263 the Supreme Court stated, "One final overwhelming consideration which militates against deferring the preparation and consideration of an EIR... is the mandate of CEQA that environmental considerations do not become submerged by chopping a large project into many little ones — each with a minimal potential impact on the environment — which cumulatively may have disastrous consequences." And at a later point, "Obviously it is desirable that the precise information concerning environmental consequences which an EIR affords be furnished and considered at the earliest possible stage."

Finally, respondents argue that an EIR is not necessary at this time because it is not feasible to assess the environmental impacts until the general plan update is completed. If in fact there is a potential for adverse environmental consequences which require an EIR prior to an adoption of a project, then it would be inappropriate to approve the project on the assumption that it may be "final" or it may be easier to assess problems in the future.

If the plan is not final or it is not feasible to now address environmental concerns, then the plan should not be approved until such time as it is feasible. To say otherwise would allow an important planning document and this area's guide for future growth and development to be implemented without the required environmental analysis. Guideline section 15013 is not designed to allow a project to be approved without environmental considerations to be accomplished early in the planning stage and prior to the adoption of the project.

Petitioner's second cause of action addresses the amendments made to the Revised Carmel Valley Master Plan on Jan. 15, 1980. The negative declaration originally issued was based on a revised plan which did not include these amendments. Changes in a project subsequent to the preparation of a negative declaration, which involve new environmental impacts not previously considered, must be the subject of a subsequent negative declaration or EIR. See Guideline section 15067. The planning staff had not considered these proposed modifications and the changes had a potential of adverse environmental impacts. There was significant public controversy generated by the proposed amendments. The League of Women Voters which had earlier supported the negative declaration now requested that an EIR be prepared. Considering the changes in the plan itself and public opinion the matter should have been referred back to the planning staff and a new decision made as to whether or not a negative declaration or EIR would be sufficient.

The "Moratorium Ordinances" adopted pursuant to agreement with Carmel contemplated that the revised plan would be "legally adopted." Respondents have now repealed those ordinances based on the adoption of the Revised Carmel Valley Master Plan. In that the revised plan was not "legally adopted" the "Moratorium Ordinances" should remain in effect.

Based on the above, this court now issues its writ of mandate directing respondents to set aside their decision adopting the Revised Carmel Valley Master Plan based upon a negative declaration and to cause to be prepared a focused EIR as recommended by the initial study.

In addition, respondents are enjoined from approving specific plans within the Carmel Valley Master Plan area until that plan is adopted in accordance with this opinion. (See Resolution No. 79-320, Administrative Record, Page 50.)

Petitioner shall prepare judgment and findings of fact and conclusions of law if requested.

Canada Lodge decision due

CARMEL'S SUIT challenging the county Board of Supervisor's approval of the 175-room Rancho Canada Lodge is expected to be decided before August.

Alexander Henson, Carmel's lawyer in the suit, said the suit, filed in March, seeks to overturn the supervisor's approval of a use permit last year for the lodge.

The suit maintains that the use permit is not consistent with the county's General Plan. It also contends the use permit was improperly approved because the county's General Plan was inadequate at the time.

After supervisors approved the use permit last July, the county received a year extension to correct its General Plan.

Henson said he expected a preliminary hearing on the suit by the end of June and a trial before the end of July.

in ways that counted. A mother who, between her job and her frequent church activities, had little time to watch over her three sons. A boy who lost his sense of belonging and esteem somewhere around age 6, never to regain it. A kind boy who often brought stray animals home, who had a bright mind and agile hands for mechanics and building things of wood. A normal kid who found drugs and crime.

The unusual factor for Eric was, that unlike the majority of children who survive, at some point he turned outlaw.

ERIC LYNN BELL was born Feb. 6, 1965, at Travis Air Force Base to Airman Lynn (later changed to Nick) and Marilyn Bell.

The father was a stocky, muscular man with thick features; the mother, shorter, but in no way diminutive, was possessed with a passion for religion.

The family moved to Carmel Valley after Bell became a California highway patrolman, after a stint as a gunsmith's apprentice.

When Eric was 15 months, a second son, Craig, was born, and a year later a third son, Neal.

Marilyn Bell remembers from the beginning that Eric was a comfort to her and a caring, helpful brother.

Interviewed a week after his funeral, for which she had come to the Peninsula from Washington, Mrs. Bell talked at length about her close ties with her oldest son.

"CRAIG WAS BORN and I remember Eric only 15 months old asking me, 'Mama, do you need help?' He'd carry the diaper pail on his own," she said.

"He always had a strength. He was wide in the shoulders, like his father.

"I was in terrible pain when Neal was born," she said. "I had to get down on the floor on my knees, and Eric came to me and rubbed my back. He was such a comfort."

She recalled a time that Craig was pulling baby Neal's hair, and Eric stopped it. Another time there was only one good pair of shoes for Sunday school, and Eric insisted Craig have them.

"When I'd bake chocolate cookies and burn them, Eric would insist on eating the dark ones," she said.

Eric loved animals.

Mrs. Bell said he had a rat, "Major Margaret," and a favorite beagle, "Buffy." He had a passion for the outdoors. He built tree forts wherever they lived and liked to fish.

"He loved his dad dearly," Mrs. Bell recalled, a rare tremble in her voice.

"Dad was a gunsmith's apprentice. Eric would stand by his father, be right there in the gunsmith's asking if he needed help.

"He was a bright 4-year-old, so responsible. Always did things without being told," she said.

THE BREAKUP OF THE marriage in 1970 was a terrible blow to Eric, Mrs. Bell said.

"His teachers said he just stared off in space, but I knew a lot of great inventors spent their time staring off in space.

"I wasn't worried, although I knew that as the oldest son, Eric felt a deep responsibility for the divorce."

Mrs. Bell retained custody of her three sons and moved to Pacific Grove, where she went to work as a telephone operator.

"We were poor. We didn't have time for a great many things, but they went to Sunday school every week and they loved it," she said.

The father didn't come to visit the boys in Pacific Grove after the divorce. He remarried, Mrs. Bell said, and left the boys with her to raise. She said Eric missed his father very much.

She came home once after working all day and attending church activities to find a sheriff's deputy at her doorstep.

The boys and some friends had been caught setting fire to a field.

FATIGUED FROM THE mental and physical strain of the divorce, her full-time job and raising three boys, Mrs. Bell decided in 1972 to take a vacation. She signed over custody of the boys to the father, and went to Israel to stay with friends for six months.

When she returned, the court ordered a joint-custody arrangement. The father had the boys during the week,

'Craig was born and I remember Eric only 15 months asking me, 'Mama, do you need help?' "

she took them on weekends. The arrangement, she found, was not only difficult for the children, but frustrated the efforts of both parents to raise them in the way they felt best.

She said, "The boys got the discipline, the chores at their father's, but there was something missing."

Eric became increasingly resentful, which she blamed on his father.

"He wasn't getting his father's attention," she said. "He was craving his father's love."

The father's seeming indifference bothered Eric so much, she said, that her son asked if he could come back and live with her. She took steps in court to get the boys back, but because the father had a better income and more stable home, the court denied her custody.

"Eric was bitter with his father," she said.

The troubles at school started. Eric was caught smoking pot and vandalizing the school, breaking into homes and staying away from school. He became so rebellious that in 1976, Mrs. Bell said, "his father dumped him on my doorstep."

THE EVENT THAT put a permanent anger in Eric's life was the death of his dog, "Buffy."

"He had Buffy for 6 years," Mrs. Bell said. "One day the dog got loose and was picked up by the SPCA.

"They said that Buffy had bitten someone, which was impossible, he was so gentle. They said they had to keep the dog for 10 days," she recalled.

She tried calling the SPCA several times for an explanation, but "they were not understanding." For a reason that Eric never forgave, and for which she could not find an explanation, the SPCA put "Buffy" to sleep.

"Eric cried and cried. He was 12 years old and hurt so much he was never the same," Mrs. Bell said.

One night Eric disappeared without telling his mother where he was going; he came home later with alcohol on his breath.

The odor of marijuana would be in the house when she came home. Eric became progressively more defiant.

"He became unmanageable," Mrs. Bell recalled.

"He could provoke me so much that I feared what I might do."

Eric was sent to his father's to be "straightened out," and his mother moved to Washington.

INTERVIEWED A WEEK after his son's suicide, Nick Bell called it "a whole set of human circumstances that added up to a human tragedy."

While insisting that no one person was to blame, he criticized the joint-custody arrangement, school officials, the influence of drugs and "the mother's lack of discipline."

"She never could handle the kids," he said, seated behind a large desk in his office on Carmel Rancho Boulevard. "She'd tell them 20 times not to do something, then not back it up, finally punishing them out of frustration."

During the periods that he had custody, Bell said the boys were given strict standards, kept their rooms clean, got a certain amount of allowance and were made to accept the consequences of their actions. The boys stayed with their father four years after the mother's trip to Israel.

Asked if he ever took his sons out on weekends, Bell said Eric was in the Boy Scouts and Little League.

However, after the court ordered joint custody, the boys went on weekends to their mother's.

"That's when it went to hell," Bell said.

There was no consistency of discipline or values, he said.

"She wanted them to go to Sunday School. They were taught they'd get little black spots on their hearts if they did bad.

"She's a very religious person," he said. "I'm not. She's also very emotional."

After a year of bickering over the joint custody, he said he decided to stop fighting it and sent Eric to live with his mother.

"We got a call one day," he said. "Eric was in his room with the door locked. He said his mother was trying to break down the door with an ax."

The mother was angry at Eric, Bell said, because her son wouldn't go to church.

"She lost her cool with him and said I had to take him back. He came back to me a loner, angry with the world."

Eric's first report card after his return was "the pits," Bell said, but his grades improved and he bought the boy a motorcycle.

The gap between father and son grew despite Bell's efforts at discipline and reward. He recalled that Eric and another kid would run away, take the motorcycle and one of his guns.

"I knew where they would be, and I could find him at the river," Bell said.

"Nothing seemed to work. He started smoking marijuana, mixing with the wrong crowd, missing classes."

After one incident—when Eric broke into the school and stole tape recorders and had to appear in court — Bell said he tried to force Eric to face the consequences of his actions.

"I guess I set too tough a standard," Bell admitted.

"He wouldn't listen to me. It got to the point where I couldn't handle him. He had to go to court again on something else — I can't remember what — and I told him he was going to a foster home."

He ran away, broke into his father's home again and several other homes, and stole from stores until he was caught by the sheriff's deputies and taken to Juvenile Hall.

"I didn't contact him . . . let him sit there for several days," Bell said.

When he finally picked up Eric from Juvenile Hall, the boy said he didn't want to return to McDowell Youth Home.

"The thing I told Eric was that he had to face the consequences of his actions. I told him, if he faced up to it, we could work it out," Bell said.

Eric was sent back to McDowell.

Meanwhile, Bell said he failed to find any support from the schools, counselors, social workers, lawyers, courts and Juvenile Hall authorities.

"The psychiatrist at the school in Pacific Grove called me a year too late to say my son needed help," Bell recalled bitterly.

The day that Eric ran away from McDowell for the last time, his father called to leave a message.

Eric never got the message that his father cared.

BELL WAS ALERTED that Eric had fled McDowell. He nailed the garage door shut, but neglected to hide the revolver in the trunk of his car, something he had intended to do ever since Eric started breaking into his home.

During the day of May 4, Eric and a friend broke into Bell's home on Via Madelena, ransacked it in search of the gun, which they eventually found, and took it along with the jewelry and stereo.

Neighborhood children told Bell later they saw Eric and his friend breaking into the house.

Eric was arrested four days later, without the stolen possessions, taken to the Monterey substation for a statement and delivered to Juvenile Hall. The gun, jewelry and stereo were never recovered.

Bell got a call from Detective Phau Monday, May 12, learned that Eric had been arrested and been up nearly all night talking. The detective said Eric was openly afraid of being in custody and had threatened suicide, according to Bell.

Donald Farmer, in charge of Juvenile Hall, said, "The deputy (Phau) warned us he (Eric) had made a threat of suicide."

ERIC'S DEATH surprised his family.

His mother didn't believe it was suicide; she went to Juvenile Hall to question the authorities and see the room her son died in.

His father said the authorities should have known

'He started smoking marijuana, mixing with the wrong crowd, missing classes.'

with Phau's warning and past experiences with Eric that the boy was unstable.

"My son had been in and out of Juvenile Hall enough times to know he was headed somewhere this time where he couldn't walk away," Bell said. "He was at the end of his rope. It was incredible that they put him in a room unattended."

There were those who were not surprised by the suicide, those who saw it coming and were either unwilling or helpless to stop it.

JAY CRIDDLE, A counselor at Carmel Middle School, said he saw a lot of Eric while he was a pupil there, and found him to be a "very intelligent, very obviously troubled boy."

From the time Eric entered Middle School, he was sullen and isolated — a boy shorter than others in his class and someone who stood apart, Criddle recalled.

His behavior at school deteriorated, became hostile and involved pot-smoking and a "few other brushes with crime."

Before he left Middle School, Eric had earned a reputation for running away from home, camping out at the river and breaking into homes.

"He got beyond his mother's control," Criddle recalled. "His dad tried to ride herd on him, but couldn't."

Criddle and other school officials were at a loss over what to do for Eric.

According to Criddle, "He didn't feel a part of the school, or his family."

"He was at odds with the world."

The boy kept so much inside, Criddle said, "it seemed apparent he was going to explode."

"He was so angry when he left here he was either going to kill himself or someone else."

A friend of Eric's saw it come, too.

TREY WHIPPLE, A Carmel High School freshman who first met Eric at Middle School, described him as "sort of shy."

"He didn't get along well, but he didn't get into fights, either."

When Eric started smoking pot, Whipple said, he became less quiet, more rowdy and broke into homes.

Removed from Middle School and sent to a foster home in 1979, Eric returned to the area last fall to attend Carmel High School.

He and Whipple sat next to each other in algebra class. Whipple remembered:

"He was more withdrawn. He just sat there without saying anything."

Whipple said he and a lot of other students were surprised by Eric's suicide. "No one realized how desperate the guy was."

Others were less candid.

ERIC'S CLOSER FRIENDS, after his suicide, seemed to abandon the idea that Eric ever existed.

Sean Sims, who Mrs. Bell and Criddle said was a friend of Eric's through Middle School, refused to discuss their friendship. He denied over the phone ever knowing Eric.

John Goss, described by Mrs. Bell, Craig Bell and Trey Whipple as Eric's "best friend," spurned several attempts to interview him at home or at Cypress High School in Seaside.

Other students explained that Eric and some of his friends were known to carry out nefarious deeds together. Those students suggested Eric's friends would be unwilling to talk for fear of being implicated.

One Carmel High School student remembered Eric simply as the "kid who dropped acid" in school and who boasted of setting fire to the school janitor's pick-up truck.

A TEACHER AT THE high school, who asked not to be identified, said of Eric: "By the time he got to the high school, he needed more help than we could provide. He was one of the most disturbed kids I have seen."

"I felt in physical danger around him."

The veteran teacher said that 10 years ago, the school was better equipped to take care of students with special needs.

He said, "We had a community counselor that we don't have today."

"There is no one on campus today to attend to kids who are really hurting."

Eric's death pointed up the pressures and pains on young people, the teacher said, but it clearly stands in contrast to "all of the kids who are surviving — who come out with that wonderful human toughness."

"Bell was just one of the lost ones."

Ray George, who works for the Sheriff's Department as a student resource officer at the high school, recalled that Eric was having deep problems with his family, and that like many in the Carmel-Carmel Valley area, he was the child of divorced parents.

"I talked with his mother a couple of times, but we just couldn't work things out," George said. "His parents didn't want him back at home.

'By the time he got to the high school he needed more help than we could provide. He was one of the most disturbed kids I had ever seen. I felt in physical danger around him.'

"He was on his own."

George explained Eric's suicide as something that often happens with people in custody, although most attempts are not successful and go unreported.

"People in custody go through changes," George said.

"They think they're going to do some time; some people can't handle being locked up."

George acknowledged that his job for the school district is to steer troubled students away from the juvenile justice system, but he said he was unable to reach Eric.

"Most you can help," he said. "Some you can't."

"For kids like Eric, I don't know what the answer is."

THE DAY THEY buried Eric Bell, the ocean breeze washed through Carmel Valley, leaving the green hills, expensive homes and air unsullied.

It was the kind of day Eric would have been riding his dirt bike or hiding out in his handmade shack in a gully below Carmel High School.

The funeral May 16 at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove was attended by more than 50 people, including Juvenile Hall Chief Farmer. He felt compelled for some reason to be there.

Mourners included two of Eric's buddies who rode their bikes all the way from Carmel Valley over the Peninsula to attend the services.

Eric's mother was surrounded by close friends and relatives.

Eric's father was absent.

The Rev. Nathan Burns of Monterey presided.

His eulogy extolled the virtue of a son who comforted his mother and watched over his younger brothers, a boy with a keen mind who had fallen victim to drugs.

The casket was lowered into an unmarked grave beside a blossoming bottle brush tree.

Inside the casket, his mother had placed a picture of "Buffy" and "Maj. Margaret," and a yard of velvet for the "son who loved soft things."

At the church fellowship afterward, the Rev. Mr. Burns was thanked repeatedly for his fine service to a boy's tragic death.

WILL this former gasoline station become a produce store?

Gasoline going, going.....

By BOB BATES

LAST-DITCH EFFORTS by city officials and a number of Carmel residents to save a gasoline allocation downtown seem tenuous.

Peaches-N-Cream, a produce store seeking to occupy a former Arco service station on San Carlos and Seventh, applied for a business license Thursday, June 5, lessening chances that a gasoline dealership will be retained there.

Mel Peterson, representing Peaches-N-Cream, negotiated with property owner James Burgess for a lease, conditional in that it called for Planning Commission approval of the use permit application submitted May 28.

"The application met all the conditions as an allowable use," Mayor Barney Laiolo said. "There was nothing they (the Planning Commission) could do to stop them."

At least two oil companies have expressed an interest in installing a gas station at the location, formerly Marcolli Arco station, which ceased doing business May 14, with the retirement of Charles Marcolli, owner/operator of the station for several years.

Marcolli's lease with James Burgess expired on that date.

Laiolo said a new service station at the same location would get a gasoline allocation of 75,000 gallons a month under new federal regulations.

Existing service stations must operate under 1977-78 allocations of about 30,000 to 40,000 gallons a month, he said.

Laiolo would not name the oil companies interested in acquiring the lease to the Arco property.

When Arco removed its tanks, the company lost its gasoline allocation for Carmel.

"One of the people I have been talking to has said that he is willing to pay Peaches-N-Cream for the lease and give the owner something extra so that he won't take a loss on his investment," Laiolo said.

"I have communicated this information to the agent handling the negotiations for Peaches-N-Cream."

"By law, he is required to divulge any information affecting the investment to his client," Laiolo said.

Burgess did not object to retaining a service station, Laiolo said.

Laiolo has also collected the names of 245 Carmel residents on a petition calling for the retention of a service station at the location.

HOME BUYER PSYCHOLOGY

Buyers buy homes by comparison. The average buyer is no slouch. He'll shop a particular neighborhood and home-type. He'll rarely buy the first one he visits. It's too big an investment to be nonchalant. He will then compare prices against comparative value. He'll quickly throw out any obviously overpriced homes.

If the buyer really likes one of these overpriced homes, he may make an offer at a lower price — closer to its true value. But history shows that he'll probably make his offer for one already realistically valued.

A local Realtor can save the home seller much chagrin in the area of comparative pricing. He knows what similar homes are selling for and which homes are not selling due to overpricing. He can help you select the proper selling price — one that will bring the best profit in the shortest time. It makes sense to work with documented facts instead of guesswork. Who knows — you may be planning to sell your home for less than it's worth. Why not drop in and find out. We have the facts!

GRANITE ROCK split a pair of extra-inning games for some added excitement in the Bronco League.

In the first game, Pine Inn and Granite Rock were tied at 8-8, with Pine Inn the eventual winner 12-9. Brian Dalton got the win, with help from Eric Hanzelka. Granite Rock's strength came from Perry Tarsitano, Brennan Langley and Bill Fogle.

The other game went to Granite Rock over Derek Rayne when, after a regulation tie of 6 to 6, Granite Rock won 7 to 6 in two extra innings. The winning pitcher was Jon D'Attilio, with Mike Cox picking up the loss in his first trip to the mound. Solid hitting credits go to Kerry Woodson, Mike Cox and Chris Clark for Derek Rayne. Mike Takigawa, Billy Fogle and Jon D'Attilio tallied extra-base hits for Granite Rock.

ROSCELLI dumped La Playa, with David Cuff getting the win. Kent Rollman doubled soundly, twice; while Steven St. Germain, Scott Murray, Damon Maggione and Chris Clark doubled for Roscelli. Tod Mokhtari and Curt Graham aided the winners with RBI. Helping La Playa was Chris Franklin's bat and a double play by Mark Senitz and Franklin.

When Roscelli met Derek Rayne, the score was 8 to 2, with Kerry Woodson getting the win for Derek Rayne; David Cuff picked up the loss. Jim Miller got two doubles and had help from Matt Pretzer and Nick Long. The winners also posted two double plays.

In a closer game, Granite Rock posted a 9 to 8 win on the pitching of Brennon Langley. The loss went to Ricky Van Every, with all the extra-base hits from Granite Rocks' Brennon Langley, Brian O'Neil and Bill Fogle.

DEREK RAYNE handed Granite Rock a 13 to 9 loss, with Jim Miller pitching well for the winners. Chris Hall and Mike Cox doubled and brought in some runs while Granite Rock's effort included Mike Takigawa, Perry Tarsitano, Brennon Langley and Jon D'Attilio all doubling. Jon D'Attilio added another double to round out his day.

Helping Pine Inn's victory over La Playa was Eric Hanzelka and Oliver Wildschut, with Brian Dalton pitching. Neal Bell doubled for La Playa and Jeff Fenton had an unassisted double play.

MOST MUSTANG games were close this week as the last days of school approached. In the contest between Dick Bruhn and Neilsen Brothers, Tom White helped to pitch Dick Bruhn to a 9 to 8 win. Edward Han hit a home run for Neilsen Brothers and was helped by Jeff Roberts, Christian Sutton and Christopher Parrish, all of whom doubled. Extra bases for the winners were earned by Tom White, Burke Noble, Robert D'Attilio and Paul Tarantino.

CRAIG COX hurled Orange Julius to a 7 to 6 over Kidder Peabody. Kidder Peabody exploded in the first inning with five runs, but Orange Julius ended on top. Just to make this Mustang race a little closer, Shoe Box and Neanderthal Furniture posted a 7 to 7 tie; Brendon Clark tripled for Neanderthal and Steve Pretzer had two doubles.

Kidder Peabody got past Rudy Harris 11 to 10. Darren Reed tripled for KP, and was aided with doubles from Matt Huntington, Eric Cedarstrom, Tyana Saxby, Brandon Kirsch and Darren Reed. Rudy Harris kept in hot pursuit with doubles from Joshua Banks and Rein Wildschut. Jason London caught a high fly ball for an important third out.

Neanderthal beat Dick Bruhn 8 to 3 on Brendon Clark's pitching. Scoring big hits for the winners was Bobby Carroll, with two doubles, and great assistance from Adam Green and Finn Rigney. Dick Bruhn's hitting came from Robert D'Attilio, Paul Wagstaff and Jeremy Miller.

Pony League

LEAGUE-LEADING Bruno's Food Center Padres, undefeated (7-0) with two-thirds of the schedule remaining, won both games played last week.

Tuesday evening, they handled the cellar-holding Carmel Rotary Club Mets 15-1, winning in five innings with the league's 10-run rule. The big inning was the third, where the Padres pushed across 10 runs, due to control problems of losing pitcher Jo Jo Ward. The Mets helped their opponents by contributing 12 errors in the five innings. Winning pitcher Steve Read tossed a masterful five innings, allowing two hits and striking out eight.

The Padres' second game of the week, Saturday morning, against the tough Lions Club Lions was also a victory, 5-4. Mike Kelly, coach Bob Read's ace hurler, performed well, giving up two hits and striking out 18 Lions (he had 19 strikeouts with a no-hitter earlier). Kelly and John Keller were heavy at the plate with a couple of RBI apiece. Lions losing pitcher Marcel Danko kept the score close, defensively cutting down 10 Padre batters by strike-out while allowing four hits.

THE CARMEL HOST LION CLUB Lions stumped the Kiwanis Club Tigers Monday evening by getting to their opponent's pitcher Tim Krebs.

Krebs had control problems, and when the dust settled at the end of the fifth inning, the Lions had scored 11 runs. The Tigers had 10 errors, five in the fateful fifth. The Tigers led 3-2 through four innings. Lions' winning pitcher Danko kept the Tigers caged offensively by scattering four hits. Trey Whipple of the Lions helped his team and average with two for four at the plate. Krebs and Rich Han kept the Tigers scratching for a victory with one for one and two for three at the plate, respectively.

THE SECOND PLACE BARNYARD MERCHANTS Athletics won both their contests during the week, besting the Lions Club Lions Wednesday 6-1 and trouncing the Rotary Club Mets 13-7 Saturday afternoon. In Wednesday's contest, winning pitcher Chris Mechel fanned eight Lion batters while collecting 3 RBI with two for three at the plate. A's John Gill (two for three) and Jay Golden (one for one as a pinch-hitter) also helped in putting down the Lions. Mechel allowed two scratch singles in posting his second win against no losses. Whipple was the losing pitcher. He struck out seven and allowed seven hits.

Saturday afternoon's game found A's pitcher John Gill facing Mets pitcher Mike White.

Gill was in better form in collecting the win by striking out eight Met batters and allowing six hits.

Javan Bernstein went heavy at the plate, collecting two hits in three trips. Jo Jo Ward of the Mets really connected for the losers. He belted the first home run of the season with one aboard in the fifth inning.

Addenda to modify Federal minimum wage rates will be issued only to holders of the above referenced books. If there is a difference between the minimum wage rates predetermined by the Secretary of Labor and the prevailing wage rates determined by the State for similar classifications of labor, the Contractor and his subcontractors shall pay not less than the higher wage rate.

They want to protect 'significant' buildings

By BOB BATES

WHAT MAKES a Carmel building "significant" is being challenged.

During the summers of 1976 and '77, students at Monterey Peninsula College compiled a list of more than 100 "significant" Carmel buildings, both commercial and residential.

That list was added to another drawn up by the city Planning Commission. The resulting tome of information, photographs and historical research has since served as the bible of both the Planning Commission and City Council in determining what is or is not a significant building in Carmel.

Criteria for defining just what a significant building is fell roughly into two categories: those architecturally significant and those historically significant.

Since September 1976, permit applications affecting buildings on the Significant Building List have been required to get City Council consideration before approval.

Planning Commissioner Sandy Swain called the MPC list "invalid" and wants a new study.

"There is a great untapped resource in the community, of individuals who are well qualified to contribute to this sort of thing, and many other projects the city is involved in," she said.

"One of the reasons the town is so apathetic is that there is so little citizen participation in city government," she said.

The City Council agreed at its meeting June 2 to limit the list to commercial buildings only in considering permit applications, until some unspecified later date.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold and Councilman Frank Lloyd serve as council representatives on a committee of seven people that will deal with establishing another list of significant buildings that Mrs. Arnold said will be more meaningful than the present list.

"The MPC study is much too large and unwieldy," Mrs. Arnold said. "It needs to be trimmed and revised."

State laws protect historically- or archeologically-significant buildings, but Carmel's list includes outside appearance as well in deciding what makes a significant building.

"THERE IS AN IMMEDIATE NEED to protect commercial buildings from demolition," Mrs. Arnold said.

However, homes are another matter.

"Appearing on the list might affect value of a property," Mrs. Arnold said, "so it is a very sensitive matter."

Mrs. Arnold also called for more advice from residents to help the committee establish a list.

"I would be glad to hear from anyone interested in serving on the committee," Mrs. Arnold said.

"I don't want to limit it to just a few individuals."

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ORDINANCE NO. 80-8

INTERIM ZONING ORDINANCE PROHIBITING TIMESHARE PROJECTS PENDING STUDY AND ADOPTION OF TIMESHARE REGULATIONS

WHEREAS, sale of interests in and rights to use real property on a time-sharing basis is becoming more prevalent; and

WHEREAS, time-sharing sales are reported to have taken place or are contemplated in the City; and

WHEREAS, the City Attorney has determined that time-sharing sales are not allowed in the R-1 District but that the regulations need to be more explicit; and

WHEREAS, it is believed that time-sharing arrangements may have a detrimental economic impact on the City; and

WHEREAS, unfair economic advantage may be allowed to some unless development of time-sharing uses is prohibited pending study and adoption of time-sharing regulations;

NOW, THEREFORE:

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. That, under the provisions of Sections 65858 et seq. of the Government Code of the State of California, the City Council hereby establishes the following temporary regulations:

a. Conversion of the use of real property to time-sharing projects or the creation of time-sharing projects, uses or estates in connection with real property is prohibited during the term of this ordinance. A "time-sharing project" means any real property which may become subject to a time-sharing program of any kind.

Section 2. Statement of Urgency. This ordinance is an urgency ordinance, under the provisions of 65858 of the Government Code of the State of California. Its adoption is required for the preservation of the public peace, health and safety, in that the City proposes to consider enacting changes in the present zoning regulations as they relate to time-sharing projects. These changes, it is deemed, are needed urgently to provide for regulation of development and creation of real estate time-sharing projects. The City Council therefore adopts this ordinance to avoid the frustration of the purpose of the proposed changes during the interim period of study, and to prevent unfair economic advantage to any persons able to make developments in these areas at this time.

Section 3. Effective Date. As an urgency ordinance, this ordinance shall become effective immediately and shall terminate four (4) months from this date; unless extended as provided by law.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA THIS 9th day of June, 1980, by the following roll call vote:
AYES: COUNCILMEMBERS: ARNOLD, BROWN, BRUNN, LLOYD, LAIOLO

Blacks, Hispanics called allies

By ROBERT GARCIA

WASHINGTON — BLACKS AND PEOPLE OF HISPANIC descent are natural allies.

They share the bitter experience of poverty and powerlessness. The needs of both groups are strikingly similar: protection from discriminatory practices, better educational and employment opportunities, improved housing and health-care services. Since both groups disproportionately shoulder the hardships imposed by cutbacks in domestic spending, the arguments for black and Hispanic cooperation are compelling.

However, there is one issue that has the potential to bedevil relations between the two minorities: immigration and undocumented aliens. For example, it is clear that blacks' frustrations in Miami were aggravated by the recent surge in Cuban refugees.

The Hispanic community is sympathetic to the influx of undocumented workers, most of whom come from Spanish-speaking America, but many blacks fear the influx of undocumented Hispanic workers undermines their already precarious economic position. While studies need to be completed before it is possible to state categorically what the impact of the undocumented workers actually is, Hispanics have to be particularly sensitive about how blacks perceive the issue.

Hispanics have to realize that the Haitian refugees in southern Florida are being discriminated against. We cannot allow the federal government to accept the new wave of Cuban refugees with one hand while deporting the Haitians already here with the other. Hispanics have to work closely with blacks to see that the Haitians are accorded the same treatment as the Cubans.

Hispanics and blacks also should begin to attack the fundamental causes of the illegal immigration into the United States: the extreme poverty of many of the nations rimming the Caribbean basin. If the United States does not substantially increase its effort to promote economic development and family planning in those countries, the pressures propelling emigration will become even more enormous.

In particular, Hispanic leaders can play a vital role in facilitating an agreement between the United States and Mexico that would establish a more realistic and mutually satisfactory regulation of the influx of Mexicans.

Hispanics have to begin working to establish a new consensus on immigration policy. We have to come to terms with the prospect that we may have to moderate our present laissez-faire attitude toward undocumented workers or run the risk of jeopardizing the prospects of close ties with the black community. Hispanics cannot afford to lose the goodwill of blacks, for only by joining forces will blacks and Hispanics ever have the power to reorient this country's national priorities so they adequately reflect the needs of minorities.

If black and Hispanic leaders do not act on the premise that they are natural allies, they will condemn their respective communities to fight over this nation's crumbs.

There are several heartening examples of black and Hispanic leaders vigorously championing cooperation between the two minorities. The establishment of the black and Hispanic Democratic coalition in the House of Representatives is a testament to the recognition by the minority legislators of their mutual interests. The efforts of the black-led National Urban Coalition and the Hispanic-led National Council of La Raza to forge close links between the two groups are particularly encouraging.

ONE CLEAR SUCCESS STORY has been New York's black and Puerto Rican caucus, which is now in the position of being able to force major concessions from the New York State Assembly's Democratic leadership. The formation of similar black-Hispanic alliances on the state level could drastically alter the politics of California, Florida, Illinois and Texas.

Recently, black and Hispanic national leaders have been working overtime trying to prevent the wholesale gutting of social welfare programs by Congress. We have been unable to forget, as some of our congressional colleagues apparently have, the price our communities can pay for federal neglect: conflagration.

(Robert Garcia, chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service's subcommittee on census and population, and co-chairman of the black and Hispanic Democratic coalition in the House, represents New York's 21st District).

Man charged in burglary

Carmel police arrested a 23-year-old man June 6 and charged him in connection with a burglary at the Cookie Place on Ocean Avenue during the early morning.

Sean J. Toolan, described by police as six-feet five-inches, 160 pounds and with an artificial right leg, is charged in the incident.

Acting on a tip, Sgt. Jerry Pullen and Patrolmen Terry Lacomda and Jon Bowman responded. Pullen covered the back, Bowman stuck his revolver through a broken window and held a suspect at bay while Lacomda kicked in the front door, police said.

Police said Toolan told them he had been living on the beach.

Missing from the store was about $100 from a cash drawer, police said.

Toolan was scheduled for arraignment.

Air traffic intruded on concert, but everyone had a wonderful time

By SCOTT MacCLELLAND

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Symphony pops concert last Sunday, sponsored by the Navy, could scarcely have been a more delightful event.

The pops has traditionally been a May attraction indoors at the Monterey County Fairground, usually with fog or overcast to chill picnickers. But this year it was put on outdoors on the south side of Herrmann Hall at the Naval Postgraduate School with a tent for the musicians, amplified sound and an audience of more than 2,000 enjoying food and music on the lawn under sensational weather.

Maestro Haymo Taeuber, in a Navy blue blazer, and the orchestra, mostly in shirt-sleeves or other casual attire, offered a popular tradition, after the end of the subscription season. But it was not always so. Maestro Taeuber's tenure with the orchestra has seen increasing interest in the pops. Such a tradition, like any orchestra function, needs cultivation, though there are still many who take the pops for granted.

TAEUBER took advantage of the situation to announce a special concert next season with pianist Eugene Istomin. Istomin was soloist in the just-ended season's last concert series, and has agreed to rejoin the orchestra at Sunset Theater on Jan. 3 for a fund-raising performance. Taeuber described Istomin's enthusiasm for the Monterey County Symphony and his intention of playing for free. While details of the program are yet to be finalized, most likely Istomin will play a Mozart concerto. And as the concert is a fund-raiser, Taeuber said the tickets will be "incredibly expensive."

The Sunday pops program was framed by John Philip Sousa, El Capitan to open and Stars and Stripes Forever to close. The Star Spangled Banner was actually the first music played, and slowly the audience became aware of the flag flying high overhead in front of Herrmann Hall.

Miss Micieli sang with gusto and finesse Giuditta's Song by Lehar and Strauss. Voices of Spring. A medley from The Sound of Music set toes tapping and a small girl to dancing at the very front of the audience (Taeuber later rounded her up for her own bow) and the Mikado and William Tell overtures filled out the festivities.

The pops concert attracted people from all levels of society, music lovers, music haters, skeptics, critics, the easily amused, people in ties, people in bathing suits, old and young, even musicians. And everyone had a wonderful time.

Scott MacClelland is classical music director for KWAV-FM 97.

a melange of Sousa, Sullivan, Sibelius, Mascagni, Rodgers and Rossini. They were joined by soprano Caterina Micieli in arias by Lehar and Johann Strauss.

There was, of course, the typical air traffic. The stormy introductory pages of Finlandia were made more menacing by the impromptu obbligator of a 737 leaving town. Some smaller aircraft punctuated other areas of the program. But the same condition regularly intruded on the fairground concerts, and even King Hall gets its share of jet noise.

The Monterey County Symphony pops concert has become

Japanese comedies to be presented

Theater of Yugen, a traditional Japanese art form, will be staged by a San Francisco Bay area ensemble Friday and Saturday, June 13-14 at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. Presented by the Staff Players Repertory Company, the program begins at 8:30 p.m.

The innovative company performs adaptations of Kyogen plays, the comedy segment of classic Noh theater. Kyogen farces are couched in the colloquial language of the Murmachi Period (1338-1573). Plots are simple and humorous but satirical of society at that time.

The company has developed its own interpretation and movement for contemporary audiences—highly stylized, incorporating elements of modern pantomime and traditional Noh-Kyogen theater.

In addition to the evening performances, a workshop will be conducted from 10 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Saturday at the Indoor Forest Theater.

Tickets for the show are $4.50, adults; and $2.50, students and seniors.

For reservations, phone 624-1531.

Grant links Christian healing to what he describes as the vital relationship between God and man. In the life and works of Jesus, he says, we find the most vivid proof of what this relationship can mean. He asserts that Jesus' consciousness of an inseparable relationship with God "enabled him to heal the sick and raise the dead."

The lecture is sponsored by the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel. Child care will be provided.

For more information, phone 375-1891.

Pebble Beach selected as 1982 U.S. Open site

Pebble Beach Golf Links will be the site of the 82nd U.S. Open Championship in 1982. Dates for the prestigious tournament are June 17-20.

Announcement of the event comes from co-chairmen Darius N. Keaton Jr., and Leonard K. Firestone and U.S. Golf Association President Will F. Nicholson, Jr.

The U.S. Open was played once before over the spectacular seaside course, in 1927, with nobody breaking par. Jack Nicklaus was the winner with a two-over-par, four-day score of 290. Bruce Crampton was three shots behind, Arnold Palmer was four behind, and Lee Trevino was five strokes off the pace.

"We're pleased and excited to have the U.S.G.A. bring the Open back here," said Keaton and Firestone.

Artist's reception, poetry at Pacific Grove Art Center

An artist's reception will mark the opening of an exhibit of prize-winning poetry from the Poetry Shell magazine competition as well as paintings by Judith Deim and photographs by Cheryl Trotter, Friday, June 13. Everyone is welcome to meet the artists at 7 p.m. at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove.

Done in calligraphy by Les Anderson, the poetry represents four categories: adult-serious, adult-light, teenage and juvenile. The Poetry Shell is a non-profit magazine of verse, started in 1972 and published twice a year. In addition to the winners, there are 100 local poets of all ages whose works are printed in the magazine. The poetry will be displayed in the Main Hall.

An exhibit of oil paintings by Judith Deim will be displayed in Gallery 19. A graduate of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts, Mrs. Deim has had one-woman shows at the San Francisco Museum of Art, Santa Barbara Museum of Art, the Marquie and Mierendorf Galleries in New York and more. In 1960 she moved to Europe where she lived for 16 years, exhibiting her works throughout Spain, France and Holland.

Her exhibit at the art center includes paintings completed during a seven-year period in Morocco and Andalucia. Her subjects are African villages, gypsy caravans, Arab musicians and Flamenco singers.

Street Exposure: Urban Landscape Photography is the title of an exhibit of black and white photographs by Cheryl Trotter in the Photo Fern Gallery. Ms. Trotter spent two years in an environmental studies program in the Santa Cruz mountains then returned to the Monterey Peninsula to study with Ron James. Her photographs portray the urban side of the environment as a contributing factor in the beauty of natural landscapes.

The works may be viewed through July 12 from 1-5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday. For more information, phone 375-2208.

up his post with the London Symphony. He now plays with the English Chamber Orchestra and the Academy of Saint Marin-in-the-Fields.

Bennett entered the Guildhall School of Music and Drama at age 16 and began at age 18 three years' service in the Scots Guards Band. ## Jazz and Classical Ensemble to give concert Saturday

The Claude Bolling Suite will fuse two musical styles when it is performed by the Jazz and Classical Ensemble, Saturday, June 14 at Sunset Theater, Carmel, to benefit the Jamesburg School. The concert begins at 8 p.m.

French composer and six-time Grande Prix du Disque winner Claude Bolling wrote the suite in seven movements for classical flute and jazz piano. The composition blends the harmony and counter-point of classics yet patterns his music after his long-time friend, Duke Ellington.

Instrumentalists are Ray Fabrizio, principal flutist with the Monterey County Symphony since 1958; Buddy Jones, bass player with Jake Stock and the Abalone Stompers and staff musician at CBS for 12 years; pianist Bob Phillips, a student of classical music on the East Coast who now plays with Jake Stock's band; and Greg Janusz, cussionist with the Monterey County Symphony.

In addition, Linda Prejean, song stylist and director of the Jamesburg School will perform contemporary works including tunes by songwriter Paul Simon.

Mrs. Prejean studied at San Francisco State University before coming to Carmel Valley in 1966 to perform with the White Oaks Repertory Company (now Hidden Valley Music Seminars). Recently she has produced, directed, and performed in five musical comedy productions of the Jamesburg Players.

The Jamesburg School is a private, non-sectarian institution founded in 1978 for children ages 5-12.

The wine connoisseur

Outstanding California red wines

LAST WEEK in this column, we listed 15 white wines from the pageant of California wines which came before the tasting scan of our 10 weeks of wine appreciation classes in Southern California.

As promised, here are a similar number of red wines brought to us by the winemakers which we found to be outstanding. We know that any one of them will be not only a worthy addition to your cellar, but add inestimable pleasure to dining occasions in the months or years ahead.

Many, many years ago, in this column we braved any thought of criticism to declare that we thought Gallo Hearty Burgundy was the best value of any red wine in America. We got lots of mail from people who had never tasted it before and they were amazed. It was, and still is, the best buy in red wine on the market. And that is no accident.

Every afternoon of almost every working day in the year, Julio Gallo goes into the tasting room of the winery in Modesto to taste wines — his own, and those of the competition. Neither he, nor Ernest are ever satisfied that the wine can't be made better and better.

"Consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds" comes to us from the wisdom of Ralph Waldo Emerson, a "foolish consistency."

If you think, as one of our readers recently wrote us, that Hearty Burgundy has changed, you're absolutely right. It has. It's less sweet-edged, and has a fuller, richer taste robe because Ernest and Julio have access to more and better grapes, from Monterey County, in addition to the lion's share from both Napa and Sonoma counties.

The blend used to be, as nearly as anyone was ever told, Petit Sirah, Ruby Cabernet, Carignane, Zinfandel and Barbera, plus some Cabernet Sauvignon. It's much enriched with those choice varieties now. At $1.99 there's nothing to compare on the market, for downright goodness and value. By the bottle or by the jug, it's just the same, but do buy it and judge for yourself. It's probably the best-selling red wine in America, and that's no accident. It's a house wine all around the country because it fills the bill.

That's the only generic on our list. The rest are premium varieties, beginning with California's own favorite grape — the Zinfandel.

ZINFANDEL: It's now fairly well established that the Zinfandel grape had its origins in southern Italy, possibly in Puglia or Calabria. Our famous Toronto friend, restaurateur John Arena of Winston's in that city, told us a couple years ago that his grandfather made wine for the family at home, and always from the "Zinfandeli grape" and none other. Researchers today are having a hard time locating it in Italy. Perhaps they should get in touch with John Arena.

Count Agoston Haraszthy is generally given credit for introducing the vine to California, where from almost Day One it became the vinegrowers' pagadebitto, or "debt-payer" because of its universally fine and heavy yield. Zinfandel grows in almost any kind of soil, and thrives in every wine-growing county of the state. But it does not make the same wine in every growing environment — no wine grape does. Each of those Zinfandels is a real, berry-rich wonder.

Boeger 1977 El Dorado County Zinfandel—$4.75.

From old, well-established vines in the Gold Rush country. A great Zinfandel, with a big 15.3 percent alcohol. It'll outlast us all, but you won't have to wait around to enjoy it. It's good now.

Clos du Val 1977 Napa Valley Zinfandel—$7.50.

Put your nose to a glass of this wine, and the only reaction is "wow!" It's also a big wine, 14.5 percent alcohol. It's only begun to unfold the great complexity which it will one day own.

Gundlach-Bundschu 1977 Sonoma County Zinfandel — $7.89.

The nose is nothing short of gorgeous. You can lay this one away for several years, or enjoy it right now.

Louis M. Martini 1976 California Zinfandel—$3.45.

Poetry winners announced

Local poets were well represented among winners of the spring contest of Poetry Shell, the Monterey Peninsula magazine of verse.

C.S. Greene of Carmel won first prize for Serious Adult Verse. Eleanor Atkinson of Carmel Valley took second prize.

Lorelei Kalinowski of Carmel won first prize for Teen-age Verse. Lis Hermes of Carmel Valley won first for Juvenile Verse. Lynda Hearn of Carmel won second place in that category and Alysa Hawkins of Carmel won third prize.

More than 100 poets are represented in the current issue of Poetry Shell, which is available at most local bookstores.

Without any doubt, this is the best buy in Zinfandel. The grapes come from the Martini mountain vineyard which spans both Sonoma and Napa counties. It's a more gentle wine, as open as a meadow in a mountain valley.

Hoffman Mountain Ranch 1976 Zinfandel — Sauret Vineyard — $10.50.

If you're a Zinfandel buff, don't miss this one. Buy it now because it's in limited supply. Big, complex, aged in American oak, marvelous vanilla and spicy overtones. A wonderful wine.

Cabernet Sauvignon: California's finest red wine varietal points to Bordeaux in France where it is the leading claret grape. It thrives in our north coastal regions, but takes well to moderately warmer regions than Pinot Noir or Chardonnay, the latter of cooler Burgundian native climates.

Rutherford Hill 1976 Napa Valley Cabernet Sauvignon—$9. The generous bouquet suggests a whole forest of wild berries. The wine is pleasant now, but will increase in its charms with added age.

Sonoma Vineyards 1976 Sonoma Cabernet Sauvignon of "Alexander's Crown"—$12.

Since the debut of these Cabernet wines from Alexander's Crown in 1974, each vintage has been eagerly awaited. This one is as rich as a jar of jam in flavor, more open than the '75, more complex and concentrated than the overpoweringly fine 1974.

Durney Vineyards 1977 Carmel Valley Cabernet Sauvignon — $8.

A graceful claret of fine body, bouquet and clearly Cabernet breed. It needs time to round out its obvious potential greatness.

Firestone 1977 Santa Ynez Valley Cabernet Sauvignon — $7.50.

With French oak aging, this splendid claret lives up to what winemaker Tony Austin hopes this winery in its pioneering location might produce — elegant wine. This is exactly that.

PINOT NOIR: Said to be the thorn in the side of California winemakers because of its temperamental adaptation to our land, I would say once more, "hogwash!" We're making dozens of fine, widely different Pinot Noir wines, from different clones, even as different wines from different clones are made in Burgundy. Finding the one that suits your taste is the only problem. They're out there, and here are four of comparable excellence.

Sanford & Benedict 1977 California Pinot Noir—$10.50.

Velvet soft already, of beautiful ruby translucence, pointing directly with its bouquet to the unmistakable breed of the true clone of Cote d'Or Burgundies. A very noble wine, indeed.

Zaca Mesa 1977 Santa Ynez Valley Pinot Noir—$7.

Grapes grown high on a mesa overlooking the broad Pacific, producing another wine of concentrated varietal character.

Trefethen Vineyard 1976 Napa Valley Pinot Noir—$6.75.

Every winegrower in Burgundy knows the name Trefethen since their 1976 Chardonnay scored a double victory in the recent Olympiad of wines, over the French. This is another winner, but of a ruby complexion and charm.

Firestone Vineyard 1977 Santa Ynez Valley Pinot Noir—$12.50. Not yet in general release, but it's time to reserve your quota, for it will be a big demand item among connoisseurs.

UPPER ROOM, an egg tempera painting by Robert Clark, is included in his one-man show opening Saturday, June 14, at the Zantman Art Galleries, Mission and Sixth, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to meet Clark at an artist's reception Saturday from 5-7 p.m.

American realist to exhibit paintings at Zantman Galleries

Robert Clark will be guest of honor at the opening reception for the 21st annual show of his egg tempera paintings on Saturday, June 14, 5-8 p.m. at Zantman Art Galleries, Sixth and Mission, Carmel. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served; the public is invited.

Considered by the Zantmans to be the first important artist to have exhibited with them, Clark has painted professionally for nearly 35 years. For the past 16 years, he has worked primarily in egg tempera, a difficult medium which dates back to the 15th century.

In his landscapes, Clark captures forever the transient beauty of nature which the human eye perceives as ever-changing. He concentrates on the intrinsic beauty of light and shadow to reveal and intensify the inherent aesthetic qualities of his subjects.

In addition to scenes of pastoral tranquility, gleaned from travels along the back roads, towns and villages of America, Clark is perpetually intrigued by the architecture of doors and windows, often painting them with a shaft of sunlight brightening an area but not quite penetrating the mysterious interior.

A native of Minnesota, Clark still draws heavily on early impressions of his native state in his work. He attended the Minneapolis School of Art and the Walker School of Art before making California his home in 1948.

In 1952 he joined the staff of the Long Beach Museum of Art. Later, as a staff member of the Los Angeles County Museum of History, Science and Art, he painted more than 20 large backgrounds for natural history dioramas.

Among commissions he completed after leaving the museum were The Resurrection for Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Glendale and environmental murals for Busch Gardens in Van Nuys.

His work has been exhibited in museums across the country and purchased by Norton Simon and the former Mrs. Samuel F.B. Morse, among other collectors.

He is included in Who's Who in American Art and the Dictionary of International Biography. A documentary film, Robert Clark: An American Realist, written and produced by William F. Taylor, has been placed in film libraries of numerous universities and museums.

Regular gallery hours are 11 a.m.-5 p.m. daily. For further information, phone 624-8314.

RETURN SHOTS

You, White, roll 2-1 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it?

Your best chance to avoid being hit is to move the blot to your 8-point, where Black can hit you only with a one. Black can hit with only 11 out of 36 possible rolls. If you stay on your 11-point he can hit you not only with a four but also with double one, double two, and 3-1, or 15 rolls out of 36.

Nevertheless, your best move in this position is from your 6-point to your 3-point, leaving the blot just where it is.

If Black hits the blot, you will have many return shots at him. For example, if he stays on your 11-point, you can re-enter your man and hit him with 2-5, 2-6, 3-5, 3-6, 2-2 and 3-3. No such shot would be available if you moved the blot and got hit on the 8-point.

If Black fails to hit your blot, you can cover with any five or six, and you will then be in a far better position to hit Black when he eventually breaks from your bar point.

FOX CORPORATION FILMING NEW PLAY

Out on the Seventeen Mile Drive, stars of the Fox Film Corporation are going through their parts in a picture to be known as "Men on Call." The men on call, one gathers, are Edmund Lowe, former dramatic protegee of Mrs. Daisy Bostick when Daisy was an educator; Joe E. Brown, that sterling comedian, Warren Hymer and a crack regiment of supers. For the past few weeks carpenters have been hard at work erecting a set near Cypress Point. Principals are living at Del Monte Lodge and the rest of the company at Hotel San Carlos in Monterey.

ANNUAL RUSH OF VISITORS DUE SOON

Carmel is filling up. The annual summer drive is on. From the big cities people are beginning their yearly migration away from street cars, from pavement, from noise and smoke of factory chimneys, and turning to the sandy roads and pines and beaches of Carmel.

June 20, to pick out one date, seems to be about the time the Carmel rush hits its stride. To coincide with the deluge, Charles Guth starts his duty that day as special traffic officer, while Ed Warner begins that evening as night watchman. Both men serve at the pleasure of the City Council.

VANDERBILT TO WRITE PRAISE FOR CARMEL

Praise for Carmel is shortly to come from Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., who has been living at Highlands Inn for the past week or two. "Enchanting Carmel" is the title of an article that will appear some time next fall in "Nomad," a monthly travel magazine in which the young writer owns a controlling interest, and which boasts a circulation of 140,000.

DE YOE PUSHES SAN SIMEON

Assemblyman Ray C. De Yoe has long been actively at work pushing through the building of the San Simeon highway. Twice he has visited San Quentin in an effort to have the number of convicts working on the road increased, and he has succeeded in having two of the camps enlarged from 35 to 65 workers.

SUNSET GRADUATES BIGGEST CLASS

The largest graduation class in the history of Sunset School, 92 students, will march down the aisles of Sunset Auditorium to the music of Pomp and Circumstance, played by the Sunset School Orchestra. The girls will be dressed in pastel cotton frocks with white gloves, and the boys will all be done away in their best suits for the occasion. Gordon Douglas, president of the class, will lead the salute to the flag and give the address of welcome.

On the following evening, Carmel High School will graduate its 15th class, consisting of 68 students. ### SALINAS FIRM WINS WOODS SCHOOL BID

Ekelin and Small of Salinas offered low bid for the construction of the new unit at Woods School and were awarded the job at a special meeting of the school board. Their bid for the six-classroom unit was $60,831, which figures out to $8.28 per square foot cost to the district. "Better than we expected," said school district architect Tom Elston. He had estimated the job at $67,000.

HATTON CANYON HIGHWAY CONTROVERSY FLARES ANEW

Controversy over the Hatton Canyon highway has revived anew with recent action by the City Council requesting the state of California to expedite its construction. The current proposal calls for a "scenic highway," and City Clerk Hugh Bayless says, "Please don't call it a freeway." Mayor Barney Laiolo says the council decided to revive the project because it will take two years, at a minimum, to get any action on it from the State Highway Division.

Mayor Laiolo believes the city should act now with an eye toward the future increase of traffic and accidents on Route 1, which is already overcrowded on summer weekends. But Admiral C. W. Fisher, president of the Carmel Citizens' Committee, objects strongly to the idea of a "high speed road running down through Hatton Canyon." Fisher believes it would be wiser to construct a number of smaller, slower roads all acting as alternatives to the present route.

WHO'S NEWS

... on the Carmel business scene

By FLORENCE MASON

THE TANERY

Jack Brown

"It's a real fun thing to do; an excellent opportunity to meet a lot of people and to be in Carmel."

Those are the reasons given by Jack Brown for opening a sun-tanning studio above Maxwell McFly's in the Doud Arcade. The studio opened for business May 23.

Brown is starting off with one booth; if business warrants, he will add another. For now he will also continue as co-owner of a foreign auto repair shop in Monterey.

Brown moved to the Peninsula from Los Angeles three years ago. He majored in design engineering at Mt. San Antonio Junior College. Single, he lives in Pacific Grove, but hopes to move to Carmel.

He saw Carmel as the ideal location for a sun-tanning business because people in Carmel "want to look well-groomed, suntanned and healthy." He is probably describing his own interest, too, as "anything to do with outdoors" appeals to him. That includes sailing and tennis.

Asked about recent reports that tanning studios could be dangerous to health, Brown said he was glad to have a chance to clarify that:

"I have done a lot of research," he said. "I think the reason for the bad press is that physicians are concerned about suntanning in general. They warn against over-exposure to the sun itself."

He said a suntan studio can actually be safer than getting a tan at the beach because the intensity of light is controlled and the studio uses a narrow, mid-range band of ultraviolet instead of the wide band of ultraviolet light that comes from the sun.

"The studio way of tanning is particularly good for fair-skinned people," Brown said. "We can regulate it so that it's very gradual. Most people will tan nicely in 10 visits; with fair-skinned people we usually recommend 15, and during the first five visits, tanning will be very, very slow."

CHESS CORNER

Derek Dykman, owner

Carmela Siboldi, manager

Derek Dykman was a summer visitor to Carmel for 15 years; when an opportunity came to have his own business here, he did not hesitate.

Dykman's parents, who live in San Mateo, own a vacation home in Carmel. Visiting here through the years, including the time he was at Junipero Serra High School in San Mateo and a student at San Francisco State, Dykman planned to live in this area when he was on his own. Experience in retail stores in San Francisco preceded his leap into ownership of Chess Corner in the Carmel Plaza Mini Mall.

He had been looking for a business related to one of his hobbies, sailing. But it was a store featuring chess, backgammon, other games and gifts that came on the market at the propitious time. So sailing remains his avocation, along with underwater photography.

Although Dykman is the nominal owner of the store, he identifies manager Carmela Siboldi as a second "proprietor."

Miss Siboldi also comes from San Mateo. She lives in Carmel Valley and appreciates its opportunities for indulging her special interests: dogs and riding horses. Miss Siboldi used to raise dogs; now, she has two coon hounds and a Jack Russell terrier.

Miss Siboldi took business courses at the College of San Mateo and worked in several stores before joining Dykman in his new venture.

PORT OF CARMEL

Gregory Schafer, owner

Gerri Raimonde, manager

A man who enjoys business and eating and likes to do both in Carmel has just opened Port of Carmel in the Carmel Craft Studios off San Carlos Street.

Gregory Schafer came to this area from Bakersfield in 1972. Manager of one of Deerr Rowe's stores, he eventually became co-owner of four. In 1977 he sold his interest in three of the stores, keeping only the Carmel Handbag Co. in the Craft Studios area. Even though he opened two more stores in Heritage Harbor, Monterey, he had his eye on a second location at the Craft Studios. When the Work Center moved to the back of that building, Schafer jumped at the chance to acquire its space.

The name of the store suggests it offers items from almost any port. Included are bath and gift accessories, decor items for kitchens, prints and photos of old-time movie stars and films, seashell arrangements, wipe-off memory boards and "fun items to pick up."

Pressed to give an example of "fun items," manager Gerri Raimonde said, "a box of nothing—the perfect gift for no one or everyone." That, customers will have to see for themselves.

Ms. Raimonde has worked in several local stores for four years. Single, and originally from New York, she lives in Carmel.

"No special interests," she said, and then reeled off a list of things she likes to do, including sports, hiking and reading.

Flag Day is June 14

Americans are asked to express their strength and solidarity by pausing on Flag Day, Saturday, June 14, at 2 p.m., to recite the Pledge of Allegiance.

The date signifies the 203rd birthday of the Flag of the United States. The 7th Infantry Division and Fort Ord will join with other military and non-military organizations in the nationwide salute.

The event was originated by the Star Spangled Banner Flag House, Baltimore, Md.

For more information, phone 242-3133.

Film Society to screen two films Friday and Saturday

Chac, one of the most unusual films of recent years, and Francois Truffaut's Small Change will be screened by the Monterey Peninsula Film Society. Chac will be shown Friday and Saturday, June 13-14 and Small Change on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 17-18. All programs begin at 8:15 p.m. in the S.F.B. Morse Auditorium, 425 Van Buren St., Monterey.

Winner of the Best Feature and Best Director awards at the 1975 Festival of the Americas, Chac won critical acclaim as "a new classic" and "a suspenseful, even hypnotic parable of faith, doubt and sacrifice."

It is the tale of a mystical guest for a Mayan holy man, a diviner who can placate the gods to bring rain to a drought-parched village. But like Greek myths, it is about more than its narrative encompasses, for it is a tale about faith, belief, endurance and perseverance.

In Mayan Indian mythology, Chac is the God of Rain who exists in four aspects. He rides a white horse along the four paths of heaven flashing bolts of lightning from his sword, while thunder rolls from his mouth.

Chac was filmed entirely on location with native Mayans, the Tzeltal Indian villagers of Tenejapa, Mexico, speaking their native dialects. The color film has English subtitles.

Children occupy the attention of Francois Truffaut in Small Change, a 1976 color film in French with English subtitles. The director creates an intricate and graceful story around the everyday lives of several children in the provincial town of Thiers.

"A kaleidoscopic rhapsody," wrote Jack Kroll in Newsweek, while the Chicago Sun-Times called it "one of his very best."

Admission is $3 general; $2.50 for students and seniors; and $2 for film society members.

The Film Society is a non-profit organization dedicated to bringing landmark films to the Monterey Peninsula. For additional information, phone 659-4795.
